THE CIARLA
OF THE
FORTY-EIGHTH CLASS OF
MUHLENBERG COLLEGE

PUBLISHED 1914 ANNO DOMINI
AND CALLED THE 1915 CIARLA

Salutation

Greetings,
we send,
and best wishes to all who shall happen to read this book, our imperfect record of the college year of 1913-14.

Grant us, we beg,
kindly criticism, and let your praise,
if such there be,
ring with sincerity and good will.

STEPHEN G. SIMPSON, A.M.

In appreciation of the interest shown in the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Fifteen and of his love for our Alma Mater,
we respectfully dedicate
this Ciarla
to
Stephen G. Simpson, A.M.,
Associate Professor of English,
Muhlenberg College.

THE FACULTY
OF

1913-1914

REV. JOHN A. W. HAAS, D.D., LL.D.

Muhlenberg + College

REV. JOHN A. W. HAAS, D.D., LL.D.,
PRESIDENT.

PROFESSOR OF RELIGION AND PHILOSOPHY.

Since Dr. Haas became President of Muhlenberg, many important changes have been brought about for the improvement of the College. Needed buildings have been erected from time to time, giving the College campus an imposing appearance. The courses of study have been greatly increased in number and amplified in their scope, with the result that they now compare favorably with those in any of the colleges of Pennsylvania. But while directing Muhlenberg in her upward career, Dr. Haas has not neglected any of the less prominent functions of his position, such as the personal relation of professor to student. He frequently mingles unofficially with the students, engaging with them in informal conversation, and exerting an individual influence that is felt and appreciated by the many men of all classes with whom he comes in tact. Moreover, with his eager sympathy for the gridiron rooters, his hearty co-operation with the literary society devotees, and his encouraging support of the student mission workers, he maintains a careful and welcomed oversight of all the student interests. The decade during which Dr. Haas has been at the head of Muhlenberg has been one of pronounced success in every department and it is the sincere hope of every one that he will long continue to be the maker and preserver of Greater Muhlenberg.

Born at Philadelphia, Pa., August 31, 1862. Prepared at Parochial School of Zion's Church and Protestant Episcopal Academy. A.B. (First Honor man and Latin Salutatorian), University of Pennsylvania, 1884. Entered Mt. Airy Theological Seminary, 1884. Ordained a minister of the Lutheran Church, 1887. A.M. and B.D., University of Pennsylvania, 1887. Graduate work at the University of Leipsic, 1887-88. Pastor of Grace Lutheran Church, New York City, 1889-96. Pastor of St. Paul's Church, 1896-1904. D.D., Thiel College, 1902. Elected fourth president of Muhlenberg College, 1904. LL.D., University of Pennsylvania, 1914. Nominated on Civic Federation by Gov. Stuart. Secretary of the College Presidents' Association of Pennsylvania for several years. Elected President of the Evangelical Lutheran Ministerium of Pennsylvania, 1913. Member of the Board of Education of the General Council. One of the directors of the Mt. Airy Theological Seminary. Co-editor with Prof. Henry Eyster Jacobs, D.D., of the Lutheran Cyclopedias. Author of "Annotations on St. Mark" (Lutheran Commentary), "Bible Literature," "Biblical Criticism," and many valuable articles on theology. Speaker on religious topics before student groups of various universities.

Carla Of The 48th Class

GEORGE T. ETTINGER, PH.D., DEAN.

PROFESSOR OF LATIN LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE, AND PEDAGOGY.

Dr. Ettinger has been connected with Muhlenberg College—first in the Academic Department and later as a Professor in the College itself—for more than thirty years. In all this long period he has been teaching Latin, seeking to give his pupils a deep, firm, appreciative grasp on the stimulating literature of the Roman people. In addition to this he serves the College as its Dean, and is also an active member of the editorial committee of the College Bulletin. For many years he had charge of the Muhlenberg Library, and in his work of collation and arrangement laid the foundation for future efforts, and was very instrumental in establishing the Allentown Public Library and providing for its needs. Dr. Ettinger is welcomed everywhere as an entertaining speaker, who can always draw from his wide and varied activity to interest and benefit an audience. We hope he may long continue to be a representative of Muhlenberg College.

Born at Allentown, Pa., November 8, 1860. Prepared in private school and the Academic Department of Muhlenberg College. Junior Oratorical Prize and A.B. (Valedictorian), Muhlenberg College, 1880. Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity. A.M., Muhlenberg College, 1883. Ph.D., New York University, 1891. Instructor in the Academic Department of Muhlenberg College, 1881-84. Principal of the Academic Department, 1884-92. Alumni Editor of "The Muhlenberg," 1886-1911. President of the Alumni Association of Muhlenberg College. President of the Lehigh County Historical Society. For fifteen years a Director of the Public Schools, and for several years President and later Secretary of the Board of Control. Secretary of the Lehigh Prison Board. Secretary of the Pennsylvania German Society. Member of the Pennsylvania Historical Society, the American Philological Society, the American Historical Society, the National Geographic Society, and the Pennsylvania Society of New York. Joint Editor of "Genealogical and Personal Memoirs of Lehigh Valley" with John H. Jordan, LL.D., and Edgar M. Green, A.M., M.D. Literary Editor of the Allentown "Morning Call."

Muhlenberg + College

REV. WILLIAM WACKERNAGEL, D.D.,
CHAPLAIN.

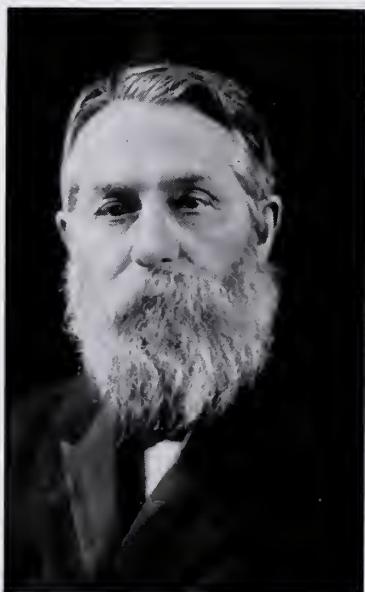

PROFESSOR OF MODERN LANGUAGES AND LITERATURE.

Whenever an old graduate comes back to roam the Muhlenberg campus once again, his first question is "How's old Wackie?" For thirty-four years the Doctor has been here at Muhlenberg, teaching German and French and Spanish, but this is not all. For thirty-four years he has been laboring steadily, unwilling to part with his "boys"; has worked early and late, eager to help every man he could, because Dr. Wackernagel will not neglect the opportunity to help some one. He has given the men who learn from him an example of kindness, and of the love that reaches out to all, ever manifesting toward them the beautiful German spirit of fatherliness that overlooks what is weak in human beings to find out and believe in what is good. He has served the College as its Chaplain, day after day facing in chapel the assembled student body with peculiar sincerity and devotion. All this he has done for thirty-four years—and is it any wonder that when a Muhlenberg man comes back home for a while he always asks "How's old Wackie?"

Born at Basel on the Rhine, Switzerland, September 25, 1838. Early education at Basel. Missionary in the Holy Land, 1859-70. Assistant Editor of "Der Pilger," Reading, Pa., 1870-76. Ordained a minister of the Lutheran Church, 1876. Pastor of St. John's Church, Mauch Chunk, 1876-1881. Founded St. John's Church, East Mauch Chunk, 1880. Professor at Muhlenberg College since 1880, A.M., Muhlenberg College, 1882. D.D., University of Pennsylvania, 1883. Pastor of St. Thomas' Church, Altoona, Pa., 1884-87, and St. Stephen's Mission, Allentown, Pa., 1897-1900. German Secretary of the Lutheran Ministerium of Pennsylvania, 1882-87. Acting President of Muhlenberg College from December, 1903, to June, 1904. Author of "Liedergeschichten," "Dr. Martin Luther," and "Hans Egede." Editor of the "Jugend Freund." A valuable contributor to various church periodicals.

REV. JOHN A. BAUMAN, PH.D.

PROFESSOR OF MATHEMATICS AND ASTRONOMY.

In this sketch we celebrate the twenty-ninth completed year, as teacher at Muhlenberg, of the first alumnus of our Alma Mater who has become a member of the faculty of the College. In all the changes that have taken place in that time, the succession of presidents, the aequirement of new and better buildings, the growth of another faeulty, Dr. Bauman has been a constant. For many years he conducted the Scienee Department, where the students worked under him with such and furnishings” as were available in those days. It was natural for Dr. Bauman to change from the sphere of Science to that of Mathematics, and this ehair he holds today. Tradition has it that he was once instruetor of Greek and Ethics, and it is generally agreed that no other professor at Muhlenberg has covered in his teaehing here so wide a range of subjects as Dr. Bauman. Even the office of Librarian was for many years held by him. We of Muhlenberg appreciate his faithful labors here, and rejoice that he is still aetive in them.

Born at South Easton, Pa., September 21, 1847. Prepared at Quakertown Seminary. A.B. (Valedictorian), Muhlenberg College, 1873. A.M., Muhlenberg College, 1876. Graduated from Mt. Airy Theological Seminary and ordained a minister of the Lutheran Church, 1876. Pastor in Westmoreland County, Pa., 1876-77. Vice Principal of Mathematics, Kutztown Normal, 1877-81. Professor of Latin, German, and English at Gustavus Adolphus College, 1881-85. Asa Packer Professor of Natural and Applied Science at Muhlenberg College, 1885-97. Ph.D., Muhlenberg College, 1894. Professor of Mathematics and Astronomy at Muhlenberg College since 1897. The first alumnus to be elected to a Professorship at Muhlenberg College.

Muhlenberg + College

ROBERT C. HORN, A.M.

MOSSER-KECK PROFESSOR OF THE GREEK LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE.

Prof. Horn is one of the members of the faculty from the Class of 1900. For many years he has been at the head of the Greek department, and in that time it has so grown in its scope that it now embraces all the important periods of Greek literature. The spirit of the ancient classics breathes from the statuary of the Greek room while the instruction, on the other hand, is modern in method and application; yet the spirit of inspiration from the past is never lost. He has given at different times public lectures on Greece, much enjoyed by those who attended. He was well prepared to do this, for he spent the summer in Europe more than once, studying the natives both of Northern and Southern Europe. Besides these things, for several years Prof. Horn conducted the Classical Club at Muhlenberg, and although this organization has now disbanded, its influence was beneficial to the student body. These are but a few of the ways in which he has worked for Muhlenberg; and Muhlenberg is glad he is here.

Born at Charleston, S. C., September 12, 1881. Graduated with First Honor from the Charleston High School, 1896. Entered Charleston College, 1896. Entered Sophomore Class at Muhlenberg College, 1897. A.B. (Third Honor), Muhlenberg College, 1900. Graduate work at Johns Hopkins University, 1900-01. A.M., Muhlenberg College, 1903. A.M., Harvard University, 1904. Instructor in Ancient and Modern Languages in the North Carolina Military Academy, Red Springs, N. C., 1901-03. Graduate student of Classical Philology at Harvard University, 1903-04. Appointed instructor of the Greek Language and Literature at Muhlenberg College, 1904. Later elected to the Mosser-Keck Chair. Spent summer of 1906 in Greece and Italy and summer of 1910 in Northern Europe. Leave of absence for study at Harvard University, 1907-08.

Muhlenberg + College

WILLIAM HAAS REESE, M.S.

ASA PACKER PROFESSOR OF NATURAL AND APPLIED SCIENCE.

The work of Prof. Reese for athletics at Muhlenberg has been recognized in some degree; and he is rightly called "The Father of Muhlenberg Athletics." But his work enters many other fields besides athletics. His classroom walls are covered with drawings illustrating his physical and chemical courses—drawings executed by himself. He is also a devotee of history and mythology, and interests his students frequently by pointing out the relation between old traditions and modern science. In the work directly connected with his department, he is full of stimulation both for those who are especially interested and those who are not. And there are many students who have faced failure at times in their college work, who have found a new inspiration by talking with him. Men have waved their hands and shouted "College Spirit, College Spirit," without any real feeling of spirit at all; but Prof. Reese has an abundance of a certain spirit that he can give to others, and does give to others; whoever has absorbed it knows its value.

Born at Allentown, Pa., October 17, 1875. Prepared at Phillipsburg (N. J.) High School and Lerch's Preparatory School, graduating in 1892. Ph.B., Lafayette College, 1896. M.S., Lafayette College, 1899. Teacher of Chemistry and Physics in Phillipsburg High School, 1896-1904. Graduate work at Lafayette College, 1897-1902; at New York University, 1902-03. Elected Asa Packer Professor of Natural and Applied Science, 1904. Leave of absence for study at New York University, 1908-09. Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity. Fellow of the American Society for the Advancement of Scientific Knowledge. Member of the American Chemical Society. Illustrated Davinson's "Mammalian Anatomy" and Davinson's series of three books in Physiology.

Muhlenberg + College

HARRY D. BAILEY, A.M.

PROFESSOR OF BIOLOGY.

Lafayette College has given Muhlenberg three of the members of her faculty, and one of these is Prof. Bailey. He has taken an active interest in the activities of the College, and is always welcomed for his interesting and significant speeches at Muhlenberg smokers. But this is only incidental—his chief work is in the Biology Department. He is almost entirely responsible for the very remarkable growth of the Biology work at Muhlenberg. A wide and inclusive collection of entomological specimens has been added to the laboratory. He has also assiduously devoted himself to making microscopic slides of various organisms for use in biologic work. Long hikes have been taken with his classes over the countryside in a fruitful search for organisms of plant life. Prof. Bailey's method of instruction is not by forcing students to work, but by stimulating their interest; and all honor is due him that he can so successfully call forth in students the true spirit of scholarship, when research becomes a pleasure and mental work a passion. This is Prof. Bailey's contribution to Muhlenberg's mental life, and it is a spirit for which Muhlenberg is deeply indebted to Lafayette College.

Born at Easton, Pa., January 14, 1881. Graduated from the South Easton High School, 1897. A.B., Lafayette College, 1904. A.M., Lafayette College, 1909. Although pursuing a Classical Course, he specialized in Biology. Attended the Biological Laboratory at Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island, during the summer of 1903. Assistant in Biology at Lafayette College, and teacher in Easton Academy, 1905-08. Assistant in the Division of Zoology, Department of Agriculture, Harrisburg, 1908-09. Appointed Instructor in Biology, Muhlenberg College, 1909, and elected Professor of Biology, 1910.

Carla Of The 48th Class

ROBERT R. FRITSCH, A.M.

INSTRUCTOR IN MODERN LANGUAGES.

The second member of the class of 1900 to come to the faculty of Muhlenberg was Mr. Fritsch. He soon took up work in the Modern Language Department, in which he is today. Here his great desire is to fill the student with German, and to fulfill this desire he has taken great pains. He offers extra hours to those who have special difficulty in pronunciation, that they may get the German accent. To those who wish it he assigns further work in collateral German reading courses, including recognized novelettes and dramas, and covering a wide range of authors. Occasionally he conducts a German reading in his classroom, which is open to attendance by every one. By selecting his readings so as to interest students, he stimulates them to enjoy and appreciate spoken German. Mr. Fritsch also stands for helping the students in every way possible to improve morally. In this sphere his position is almost unique on the faculty. A few years ago he was the leader of one of the Muhlenberg Bible study classes. Whatever he can do to be of assistance athletically, intellectually, and morally, he is willing to do, and it is this that especially marks his instructorship here as a successful one.

Born at Allentown, Pa., September 10, 1879. Graduated from the Allentown High School with First Honor, 1896. A.B. (Valedictorian), Muhlenberg College, 1900. A.M., Muhlenberg College, 1903. Ph.B., Illinois Wesleyan University, 1904. A.M., Illinois Wesleyan University, 1907. Teacher in Department of Classics, Allentown High School, 1901-07. Instructor in Greek at Muhlenberg College, 1907-08. Instructor in Modern Languages since 1908. Graduate work at the University of Pennsylvania, 1910-13.

STEPHEN G. SIMPSON, A.M.,

LIBRARIAN

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF ENGLISH.

Although this is but the third year that Prof. Simpson has been teaching at Muhlenberg, yet so closely has he associated himself with the working of the institution that the students in College feel that he has been here a much longer time. His instruction is marked by live, personal, persistent drilling, in which he attempts to give material not for the notebook but for the mind. His lectures, tests, and assignments have such stimulating variety that they appeal to the individual interests of the students. There is also another role in which Prof. Simpson is rendering the College great service, namely, that of Librarian. He has carefully catalogued the most important sections of our library, according to the Dewey Decimal and Cutter systems of classification, and is steadily at work to bring the cataloguing to completion. Prof. Simpson is one of the faculty members that seek to help men by personal intercourse; and in his sanctum, the Library, he discusses every variety of matter with every variety of man. In this way he has made himself a vital factor in student life, a helper indispensable to those who know him.

Born at Easton, Pa., May 4, 1874. Graduated at South Easton High School, 1892. A.B., Lafayette College, 1896. Phi Beta Kappa Honorary Fraternity. A.M., Lafayette College, 1899. Teacher in South Easton High School, 1897-1902. Head of English Department, Easton High School, 1903-11. Columbia University, summer sessions, 1903, 1904, 1905; courses in English and French. Instructor in English at Muhlenberg College, 1911-14. Elected Associate Professor, 1914.

JAMES H. S. BOSSARD, A.M.

INSTRUCTOR IN HISTORY, ECONOMICS, AND SOCIOLOGY.

It has been but a few years since Muhlenberg graduated the best football center she had up to that time. Now since this scholar and athlete has returned to his Alma Mater in the capacity of a member of the faculty, he has retained his old "spirit" and become one of the leaders in her gridiron activities. He is a promoter of "college spirit" at football smokers and chapel mass-meetings, and his influence is distinctly felt by those students who fully appreciate the football situation at Muhlenberg. Moreover, the same enthusiasm which he demonstrates in connection with athletics also appears in his classroom work, with the result that he has made a radical and very successful departure from the beaten paths of teaching the social sciences. Instead of spending all the time on pure unapplied theory, he devotes a large part of it to a practical study of the vital economic and social problems facing America to-day. For this reason his courses are of great value to students otherwise likely to forget the world about them. Mr. Bossard has put his work on a high level, and it seems he will have no trouble in maintaining it.

Born at Danielsville, Pa., September 29, 1888. Entered public schools of Allentown at age of twelve. Graduated from Allentown High School with Honor, 1905. Entered Muhlenberg College, 1905. Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity. Special work in History and English in Senior year. A.B. (with Honor; Philosophical Oration), Muhlenberg College, 1909. Winner of a Harrison Scholarship for 1909-10 in the Graduate School of the University of Pennsylvania. Awarded a University Fellowship for 1910-11. Specialized in History, Sociology, and Economics. A.M., University of Pennsylvania, 1911. At the same time elected Instructor of History, Economics, and Sociology at Muhlenberg College. Graduate work at the University of Pennsylvania, 1912-14. Member of American Academy of Social and Political Science, Western Economic Society, American Sociological Society, Lehigh County Historical Society, and American Association for Labor Legislation.

REV. JOHN D. M. BROWN, A.M.

INSTRUCTOR IN ENGLISH.

Mr. Brown is not only one of the youngest, but one of the most enthusiastic members of the faculty. His undergraduate record at Muhlenberg shows that in addition to his scholastic work, he was editor-in-chief of the Ciarla and of "The Muhlenberg," making of both very successful publications. At College he also developed the habit of taking long hikes, and, as a result of this, he spent last summer hiking through England and visiting the literary shrines there. Mr. Brown has been a student of a very wide range of subjects— oratory (Neff system), modern languages (including Italian), English, contemporary literature, Semities, Aesthetics. Although he resigned his ministerial charge to come to Muhlenberg, yet he still finds time amid arduous duties to fill pulpits on Sundays. His work at College as instructor has been marked with great success, and he is recognized now as a valuable factor for exciting enthusiasm and spirit at football smokers. Although this is but his second year at Muhlenberg in his present capacity, he has become invaluable in the work of the College.

Born at Lebanon, Pa., December 2, 1883. Educated in public schools of Lebanon. Graduated with First Honor from Lebanon High School, 1902. Entered Muhlenberg College, 1902. A.B. (Amos Ettinger Honor Medal), Muhlenberg College, 1906. Entered Columbia University as graduate student in English, Comparative Literature, and French, 1906. A.M., Columbia University, 1907. Student at Mt. Airy Theological Seminary, 1907-10. Graduate student in Semities at the University of Pennsylvania, 1909-10. Ordained a minister in the Lutheran Church, May 23, 1910. Pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Millersville, Pa., 1910-12. Elected Instructor in English at Muhlenberg College, 1912. Spent summer of 1913 in England. Member of National Council of Teachers of English.

ALBERT C. H. FASIG, M.S.

INSTRUCTOR IN CHEMISTRY AND PHYSICS.

At the time of writing it is but little more than a year since Mr. Fasig came back to his Alma Mater as an instructor in the Science Department. Since that time his work has already been marked by distinct achievements. In the first place, the laboratory system has been perfected with his aid. All the work done by students is thoroughly checked and accredited, new and up-to-date equipment is furnished, and personal direction is given to each student. These things were not possible with but one Professor in charge.

But Mr. Fasig has not confined himself to the work of instruction. In his college days he was an effective football player, and now has already won a reputation for sensible, invigorating football speeches. As a gridiron veteran, he exerts a decided influence in Muhlenberg athletic circles. Moreover he delivered a lecture to the class in Economics on milk and meat inspection as he had found it in Reading, thus supplementing the regular lectures in that branch. His activities are increasing in breadth and scope, and Muhlenberg realizes that she has been favored in having Mr. Fasig for an instructor.

Born at Reading, Pa., September 18, 1888. Graduated from Reading High School, 1906. Entered Sophomore class at Muhlenberg College, 1906. Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity. B.S., Muhlenberg College, 1909. M.S., Muhlenberg College, 1910. Employed by the Board of Health, Reading, Pa., as chemist in the Department of Milk and Meat Inspection. Elected Instructor in the Department of Natural and Applied Science at Muhlenberg College, March 1, 1913.

HAROLD K. MARKS

INSTRUCTOR IN MUSIC

There are many supporters of Muhlenberg who well remember the great and inspiring musical work of Dr. C. A. Marks, whose labors of several years at College were suddenly cut off by his death in 1912. To all of these the appointment of Mr. Harold D. Marks, son of the former, as instructor of music at Muhlenberg, must come with special satisfaction. The short time that he has been at College he has proved that the spirit of his father breathes in him. His influence has been exerted on the side of refined and classic music, and in accordance with the highest and truest principles of his art. Mr. Marks has done much to place the course in music in the high rank that the other fine arts courses maintain. The glee club is also a product of his effort, and the glowing success of that organization in the current year is based on his careful and helpful supervision. It is hoped that the department of music may continue to grow under his guidance.

Born at Emmaus, Pa., May 12, 1886. At an early age came to Allentown. Entered Allentown High School. Was graduated 1903. Entered Muhlenberg College, 1903. A.B., Muhlenberg College, 1907. Studied music under his father, C. A. Marks, Mus. D. Course in Piano under Albert Ross Parsons, New York. Course in Organ under Organist R. Huntington Woodman, First Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn. Course in Musical Theory under Hugh A. Clarke, Mus. D., at the University of Pennsylvania. Chorus Director and instructor in Vocal Music at Allentown College for Women, 1909-11. Organist of St. Michael's Lutheran Church, Allentown, Pa., 1907-10; of Zion's Reformed Church, 1910-13; and of St. John's Lutheran Church since 1913. Elected instructor in Music at Muhlenberg College, 1913.

1914 CLASS HISTORY

Is it possible that this day has come so soon? How remotely distant it appeared but four short years ago! Here we stand in a little group, and before us lie twenty-eight diverging pathways, leading to the ends of the earth. We are on the line, and have heard the "get set," and with "go" a new page of history will have been turned in each life.

In the word Commencement, we see only commence. We are thinking of the unknown future, as we leave these halls so full of rich memories. What does it hold for us? Has this miniature world of ours given us a glimpse of our destinies? Will we display the same traits in life that we have developed here? Is there an essential difference out there, other than that the stakes are so much bigger and the fight more bitter and intense? We have been preparing for this day, and it has come.

We have learned to know each other thoroughly. We have formed friendships that shall sweeten after days; we have met men with whom we could not form close ties; but, one and all, we are overlooking these petty differences as we stand together for the last Alma Mater.

There is sorrow in our departure, yet we are eager to go, for there is not a one of us who is not absolutely confident of the future, not a man who does not feel perfect assurance. Some of us must have a rough journey, however, and others will find the "bon voyage" that we all wish to each other. Come what may, we all hold in our hearts indelible memories of four rare years together at Muhlenberg, where we struggled to lay hold of the highest ideals, where we strived to uphold the heritage that is ours.

When thirty years have passed, and these maples have become towering massive trees, and the ivy has reached the gables, we will return and thank God for the opportunity that has been ours.

HENRY H. BAGGER

“BOOB”

“He was so generally civil that no one thanked him for it.”

“Boob” Bagger possesses an abundance of energy, and consequently is one of the hardest working fellows in school. He spends all his time doing something; sometimes it is the Herculean task of brushing all the dust off from his immaculate table-top; at other times it is nothing but cleaning his rooms. He even won't go fussing because he can't spare the time. However, by far the main part of Baggul's time goes to his books. Up to the time of writing he has taken every prize offered to his class. It seems well-nigh impossible that a youth coming from the Manual Training High School, overlooking New York Bay and the common school branches, should get away with them all.

Athletics is another phase of Henry's work. It is no physical characteristic at all that makes Henry a good athlete. For Bagger is a fighter. He fights! When he was a Freshman he fought against the Sophomores, and the first half of the Soph year he as President led the whole class in the anti-Freshman struggle.

Any one who reads this sketch or who knows Henry Bagger personally will understand that such characteristics mark a man with strongest kind of college spirit; he will also perceive why Boob's greatest collegiate success was in a play given by the Dramatic Association, when—calling into play all his supple grace of figure and sparkling brillianee of mind—he acted in the role of chorus-girl.

His future is impossible of prediction. Make your own guesses!

HARRISON W. DUBBS

“ABE”

“A bright heart lives long.”

How Dubbs happened to be the son of an humble Pennsylvania Dutchman instead of the President of the United States is entirely beyond our limited comprehension. He surely has the “makin’s” of a great man. His noble heart is filled with high aspirations and noble sentiments which he even now pours forth from his soul to eager listeners (don’t tell the gentleman that half of them are asleep). They—espeeially the half that sleep—with one accord say that Harrison gives promise of one day being a world-famed speaker.

But we must also speak of Dubbs’ valor. Already in the bowl-fight way back in 1911 he proved his mettle. When he appeared for that historic eonfliet elad in his Sunday best he did not hesitate to enter the fray, but fought “nobly and well” until certain absolutely indispensable portions of his apparel were forcibly and rudely removed.

However, Dubbs’ disposition is not altogether free from the evidences of ranting ambition. We are compelled to state that he is fired with the noble desire to become an archeologist. He expects to make discoveries in the archeological world that will make the Rosetta Stone seem insignificant in comparison, if indeed he does not prove that discovery a palpable fraud.

Surely the fearless eye, the noble brow, the wavy raven hair all betoken the great man to be. There can be no doubt of it—Dubbs is the man to bring fame and honor to his Alma Mater. Long after the walls of this historie institution have crumbled into dust, praises of the name of Harrison Winebert Dubbs will still make the welkin ring in honor of himself and of his native town.

WALTER O. ETTINGER

"Not much talk, a great sweet silence."

This interesting member of our class is characterized by his taciturnity and his tendencies for fussing. It is indeed remarkable that these two should go together as they do, but it seems, in this case at least, the combination works to the greatest satisfaction of all concerned.

There have been men of few words, and men of modest demeanor, but as the superlative of these stands Ettinger. He never has a great deal to say and what he does say is tersely expressed. But—when he says something it is usually worth while and to the point.

Perhaps this is the reason why Ettinger succeeds so well as a fuser. As all know, a girl likes to talk, and it may be the more a fellow lets her talk the better she likes it. If this is the case, Ettinger's taciturnity and his suggestive remarks help to create the Ideal which every girl is looking for.

To return to our subject, Ettinger is a fuser of the first order and his triumphs over the feminine sex are beyond number. Despite this, he has never gained the name of heartbreaker. There are several ways that this could be avoided, but only two are worthy of mention. First. Let the girl chuck you. Impossible. No man could stand this forever and so at some time would earn the name of heartbreaker. Second. Tact. This is both possible and probable, for Ettinger possesses oodles of it. Thus, his innate breeding and common sense have spared him the title of heartbreaker and proved him a man of tact.

HARRY B. FEHL

"He laid so many books in his head that his brain could not move."

Here is a man who is always on the job. Fehl never Fehls—you must pardon the pun, but no record of the remarkable person could be complete without that time-honored play on his name. And Harry clings obstinately to the obsolete idea that college is the place to study. He actually seems to think there is something worthwhile in school-books, and persists in trying to find out what it is.

For this perseverant spirit Harry is to be strongly praised. He does not confine this characteristic to his books. Whenever there is anything going on at which his presence is desirable, he is there. On Poster Night he was one of the many Sophomores that undertook and accomplished the temporary ruin of the Freshmen.

Harry was on hand on the gridiron side-lines during F. & M. week. He helped enjoy the goodies at that memorable banquet given by the Sophomore class. Finally, he appeared in the 1912 bowl fight. So his record runs on.

Of course Harry has his faults. For a detailed account of these I can but refer to his former room-mate. Day after day Fehl's chum was kind enough to lecture him on this subject in this way. "Harry. —go fussing. There is study and exercise. Dancing gives this. Conic sections? Watch the new dances! Infinitesimals? Calculate the modern girl's shyness!"

Harry listens quietly to all this, and some day intends to unite this instruction with what his other teachers have given him, and give it to the world in a book. "Future assumed? Well I should hope!"

THEODORE K. FINCK

“SPEED”

“Void of all deception, he speaks his mind without hesitation.”

A few days before the formal opening of our Sophomore year, when we were slowly drifting together again from the fields of our various summer endeavors, in the midst of the confusion attendant upon our coming, the voice of one crying in the wilderness of Georgia that he was on his way to join us reached our ears. For a day or two that was all. Then, like a star rising out of the horizon, there loomed into our ken the mighty Theodore.

Finck is a man who hasn't had a bit of excitement in his life—not a quiver! He has seen no turbulent times, nor has he lived in any period of disturbed days. Life with Theodore has been one grand, sweet monotone, peaceful as a summer morn. However, he was temporarily brought to life when night after night he took his bumps as a scrub for our basketball team.

Then Finck jumped into fame with a vengeance. Any man that has the nerve to play the Quartette from Rigoletto, in the Commons, just after a session of ragtime, deserves notice—but—when he plays it so well as to win an encore, he is famous. Finck, however, does not depend entirely upon his music to express his thoughts, for by the ordinary vibration of his vocal cords he can expound some of the most unusual thoughts ever formulated by the mind of man. When a thought hits him, Finck is most interesting. His fall from a seat in the Logic Room, while Dr. Haas was demonstrating the six canons of the syllogism, proves the psychological assumption that “all thought tends toward action.”

New Market, Va. Born at Anderson, Ind., August 13, 1895. Prepared at Academy of Richmond County, Augusta, Ga., Newberry College. Entered Sophomore at Muhlenberg in the fall of 1912. ELMER E. FREDERICK

“BABE”

“Give him a plaything or a toy
And you cannot find a happier boy.”

We now come to one of the direct descendants of old Morpheus. From the time he first saw the light of day, this gentleman has spent the large majority of his time in sleeping.

This craving for rest enables him to sleep anywhere at any time. It is known that on one occasion at least he even slept in a car-barn. Moreover, since he is usually in such a state of semi-somnolence, he is absolutely incapable of keeping an appointment, unless he is lured there by prospects of something to eat. Owing to this failing he has never yet appeared on time for his classes and frequently misses the first class in the morning entirely.

To continue, we must confess that he possesses somewhat of music in his soul. Freddy, by hook or crook, has obtained the position of pianist on the Glee Club (also that of organist in an unwitting Catasauqua Church) and the life of its members would indeed be hard were he not there to accompany their efforts. Elmer certainly plays an important part in the concerts this energetic body gives, but just what role he holds is a question.

Freddy is a silent body, unwilling to attract a lot of notoriety, glad to take a back seat. But “There’s a Reason.” It is commonly reputed among those who know him best that he takes the back seat in order to fix pins in the chairs in front.

As for his future, his hopes are slender indeed, for, unless an antidote for his sleeping sickness be injected, he will dream all through life. We sincerely hope some one will slip him the dope-needle.

Allentown, Pa. Born at Hellertown, Pa., March 29, 1893. Prepared at Catasauqua High School. Entered Muhlenberg in the fall of 1911. Ph.B. Course. Euterpea. Glee Club Accompanist (1, 2, 3). Secretary (3). Reformed. Democrat. Music.

J. MELVIN FREED

“NEVIN”

“Industry shall have its reward.”

Wisely seeking to better himself by a college education, Nevin left behind him the busy marts of Perkasie and set out to see what a real city had to offer him. At first the life down town appealed to him and he became one of those daily travelers to and fro. But soon a longing for the intimate fellowship of the dorms seized him and, as the chill winter winds froze his little ears, he moved all his worldly goods to the room above the arcade, where he enjoyed peace and comfort.

As a Sophomore, he became the terror of the impudent and imprudent Freshies by the stern way in which he exercised the iron rod of power for their own good as he gave out orders for the feeding of our mascot, “Dutch.” (“Dutch,” may his soul rest in peace, died!)

But all this was as nothing to the position which he secured as assistant in library and cataloguing work. He has been initiated into all the secrets of the professional librarian and has become so expert that, by the use of the “arbitrary system” (patent applied for), he can now pick out any book asked for within three chances or you get your money back. Try him! You can’t lose anything by it, not even your money!

Melvin vows he will never marry, and therefore his wedding will come off about three weeks after Commencement in the year 1915. He will marry one of the sweet and lovely kind of Perkasie. (Perhaps since the Junior Ball this is no longer true.) But no matter who it is, Freddie is sure to make a living for two, even if he makes his wife take in washing.

WILLIAM A. FREIHOFER

“BILL”

“He has a head to contrive, a tongue to persuade, and a hand to execute any business.”

As becomes a citizen of a busy burg like Philadelphia, Bill is always on the go, usually between Allentown and home. Do what he will, he cannot endure life at college for more than a few days at a time. Why it is, we do not know. Perhaps somebody is waiting for him at the other end of the line. Again it is suspected that he is a stockholder of the railroad and patronizes it by traveling to and fro in order to increase the dividends. This seems likely, for only a business head could devise such a scheme, and Bill is business itself.

Small-bore poets have dinged at us for years and years that “little drops of water, little grains of sand, make the mighty ocean and the pleasant land.” But this process is too slow to attract much attention at this college. Wherefore let us salute Bill Freihofer. He goes in for broad effects. This CIARLA is a living testimony to that spirit of his, and if you could have been at the banquet our class held you would have seen still further evidences of it. And then there is that unpreeended stunt, the Junior Ball, which also owed its success to Bill’s fondness for big effects.

But where is Bill going to? We mean in this life; his work in an East Allentown Sunday-school assures him a safe resting-place in the hereafter. It may be that he will become a politician, or else he may make his dough in the baking business, but, at all events, we know that if “Desperate Will” once gets started he will make good.

Philadelphia, Pa. Born at Philadelphia, September 26, 1887. Prepared at the Brown Preparatory School of Philadelphia. Entered Muhlenberg in the fall of 1911. Ph.B. Course. Class Of The 48th Class

NEWTON W. GEISS

“TONY”

“Comb down his hair; look, look! it stands upright”

Newton came from Kutztown, a departure which deserves much commendation—not that we love Kutztown less, but that we love Newton more. When we see his mantel adorned with numerous photos of fair “class-mates at Normal” we wonder how he ever came away, but doubtless the rickety, bouncing rat-trap of a trolley car that crawls through the valley was the means of his emigration.

Geiss is a worker first of all and converted his room-mate to the same idea.

Geiss works hard at other things besides his books. He is one of the few in the class that can boast of being for two years on the class teams of football, basketball, and baseball. Newt has no athlete's physique, but he plays with a spirit that more than makes up for it. Watch him in a game of basketball—his body grows tense, his face flushes red, and his mouth sets in the never-give-up expression that does not wear off until the last whistle blows. In baseball he was manager of the class team in his Freshman year. In addition he has scrubbed faithfully on the gridiron for the varsity ever since he came to college. These things enable one to see why it is that Newt is fully deserving of the trust and confidence reposed in him when he was elected manager of the Muhlenberg football varsity.

Twenty years from now you will find Prof. Geiss surrounded by a “dicke Frau” and crowds of little children (not kids, if you please), serenely standing near the schoolhouse where he has made his mark in the world—and on the blackboard.

FREDERICK H. HEMSATH

“SACH”

“And truly he loved to be quizzed.”

As I was saying, before the Blue Pencil eliminated the introduction, Fred discovered that his classmates were erring most of the time, and believe me, once he got the idea he was right he had the courage of his convictions, and nothing could alter his opinions. Let us cite the historic “Case of the Blue Shirt.” It seems that at one time some utterly irresponsible Freshman had started a conflagration in Hemsath’s locker, during the course of which an ancient, antique shirt was consumed, said shirt valued at seven cents or thereabouts. Merely “as a matter of principle” and “to prevent any further vandalism of such a nature,” Hemsath shouted for six weeks about the affair, and after taking the case before the Student Council nearly precipitated a riot when it was discovered that he accused two of his innocent classmates. How is that for courage of one’s convictions?

Fred struggles beneath two fond illusions—the first that he can sing, the second that he can play tennis. As regards the former, we can only say that it is generally believed impossible that his position on the church choir was won by merit. As regards the other illusion, however, we must confess that as a tennis player Hemsath is second to some. Although he always was a staunch Euterpean, nevertheless he has gone so far as to cut Society to indulge himself in this pastime.

Gentle Reader, you had best turn on to some other subject lest you become convinced that Hemsath is utterly without good in his makeup—which is, we assure you, hardly the case.

“SLATS”

“What! didn’t you ever hear of Francis Wilson?”

It has long been the custom of our German Professor to recommend to “studes” desirous of increasing their vocabularies the practice of translation of the names of all familiar objects. Zum Beispiel when walking downtown one sights a tree the method prescribes that you exclaim: “das ist ein Baum” —thereby adding to the world’s knowledge. Behold ergo the only original self-starting Baum. It would be unfair to dwell at length (and there is some length) upon the physical characteristics of the aforesaid Baum; suffice it to say that the one distinguishing feature of this arboreal-like specimen is the fact that he must have hollow limbs. Shades (or rather blinds) of Walnut Street, how that man can eat. His capacity for foodstuffs is unlimited, as any reputable physician will inform the reader. Nobody can tell Baum a thing about music, copper wire, or the theater, and he can recite off-hand the names of all the famous American cartooners. But listen closely, reader, if you would alter an unusually cheerful disposition and cause a wrathful outburst on the part of this young man, after whom the “Slatington Limited” has been affectionately named, just whisper “Didn’t you ever hear of Francis Wilson?”

Of his fondness for hold-ups, Mealey’s, disturbing the domestic tranquillities of the Dorms, the fair sex, etc., volumes might be written —but—what’s the use?

ERNEST R. KEITER

“Good nature and good sense united, the product, a man.”

With no ulterior motive in view except the preservation of the historical verities and the deduction of suitable moral lessons therefrom, we may say that Keiter in his youth was a youngster—yea, he was a fresh youngster. They used to make him run around the play-grounds at school a set number of times for talking too much. By thus reviewing the life and activities of “Mose” the exceeding truth of the adage that the tree inclines as the twig is bent is forced again upon us.

This boy can be insolent, impudent, satirical, sarcastic, by turns. Let him talk about a subject and that subject immediately becomes the most important subject in the world. He never asks you to do a thing, but tells you to do it. His greatest ambition in life is to make Hemsath uncomfortable.

A cartoonist would do well to draw him about eleven feet tall, with a face long enough to eat oats out of a barrel. He would be far happier if he were only a modest five feet ten or so; but, of course, it isn’t his fault.

But he doesn’t mind. He has chosen, as his precept: “Be calm.” Even his middle name, speaking Germanwise, Ruhe, is a translation of it. He lets all things adjust themselves. Urged to fervent action, he asks “What’s the use?” He adjures all others to be calm, but is himself the calmest of all.

Ruhe! rest! I think he looks at life as a sort of ring-round-a-rosy performance, with no more definite end in view than the ringing round the rosy. He is as reliable as Old Dog Tray.

HOWARD B. KISTLER

"High sparks of honor in thee have I seen."

The bell has rung, the recitation begun, when suddenly the door opens and in rushes a little body, breathing heavily. A single glanee will eonvince you that this person has been rushing and hurrying ever since he woke. He probably contracted this habit from his Marathon running, for let it be known that Howard B. Kistler is an experienced long-distance runner. Sometimes, however, Howard comes to class wearing a grouch, and while in this state he is easily peeved by the aetions of the common herd of his classmates. When onee aroused, then indeed he makes the fur fly, for he talks so fast and so loudly and so earnestly in his effort to be heard at oncee, or before, if possible, that his language becomes much more voeiferous than intelligible. Metaphor, hyperbole, simile, personification, and every other known—and some unknown—figures of speech flow from his lips in such an eestatic profusion as to produce something resembling a Chautauqua harangue. Once let him get a running start in defense of the Bull Moose party or the military reputation of the Pennsylvania Germans and few powers on earth can stop him. His eloquence is indeed startling.

Nowhere in his history can there be found any trace of a love affair. We are at a sad loss to know to what to attribute this delinquency. Young man, remember that eelibacy with college men is listed with arson and manslaughter today, as it was in 1840. Do not allow your otherwise fair name thus to be desecrated.

W. HAROLD LAURY

"A fine volley of words and quickly shot off."

Ordinary people tire us very often by the mere monotony of their actions and the ordered routine of their lives. Great as his other faults may be (emphasis on the "may"), this offense has never been laid at Laury's door. Originality and the Unexpected are the keywords of his whole make-up. He never reacts in the usual way to external stimuli, but strikes off at a distinctly Lauryian tangent.

With ordinary mortals it usually happens that a ducking with a bucket of water will produce anger. In fact, this is so generally the case that it is stated as the law of ducking. Laury does not regard this in the least but, setting aside the wisdom of the savants, merely laughs as he wrings out his dripping shirt. But don't get the notion that there is no anger in his person, for there is oodles of it. He is liable to come in to his room laughing and smiling and inside of fifteen seconds develop the most delightful grouch that could be imagined because he finds his room mussed up to the extent of a paper or book on the floor.

His greatest pleasure in life, if we except the ladies (his common bond with ordinary men), is plaguing his room-mate. Unexpected and original are his devices, as often are the results. But we, like Laury, must drop these childish pranks if he is to have a future.

With his ordinary love of anything that runs, and smells like gasoline, with his unfailing fountain of words and his refreshing personality, it seems as if he will make his fortune and fame in the auto business.

“OLD COKE”

“And all the ladies call him sweet.”

Somewhere hidden away in the potato lands of Pennsylvania is the little hamlet of Switzer, whenee our valiant Nevin T. hails. We don't know muuh about the placee, but we do know Old Top, whieh is much more to our advantage. Although he is the same good-natured Dutehman that he was when first he eame, he shows traees of the influence of his vivaeious room-mate, Snitz. As a fusser from Switzer, Old Top is some cheese. Credit for this is due to Snitz, for, tutored by him, Nevin has learned the wiles of the feminine nature and has created a furore in Allentown society, and now reeeives more pink envelopes (smell 'em, gents, smell 'em!) than any other person in the dorms.

But do not think that all his homely virtues have been perverted. Nay, nay, it is not so. Despite the fact that he deelares that sixty plus nothing is nothing, he is still an honest man. So honest is he that since his arrival at college he has served faithfully as treasurer of our class and has been entrusted with the sundry sums that have made their way into the treasury and with the vast moneys yet unpaid and has never even attempted to make off with any of them.

But, assuming for a moment that Loch eseapes from Snitz before he has lost all his own charaeteristics, how will he end up? We will not offer anything but a negative predietion. It may be teaching, law, medieine, the ministry, but of one thing we are sure—he will not canvass Current Opinion.

G. DONALD MARKS

"DON"

"Oh, it's any tune that comes into my head."

"Don" Marks, the lean and lanky tenor of the Glee Club, of which, by the way, he is the leader, possesses a superabundance of fun that makes it next to impossible for him to be serious. The least cause and the persistent smile is transmuted into a cackling laugh which is infectious if not artistic.

Besides the exterior of a jester, Marks has the soul of a musician. He was born with it, always will have it, and no doubt will take it with him across the River Styx. For this we are truly thankful and point with pride to the Glee Club, as an example of his handiwork. He labored long and late with them, and to no small degree is the success of this year's club due to his efforts. If he were to confine his music to the accepted instruments there would be no objection—but—his experiments in harmony upon the less conventional instruments up to this time have met with disaster. He even tried to train the "Harmony Quartette" so they could carry one tune. Horrible.

He is also a motor fiend, and if he is once started there is no stopping him either verbally or actually, unless an accident intervenes. He is speed personified on this subject and resents the least suggestion that "Gus" Merkle is able to beat him. This suggestion is sure to start him talking for an hour or more, so steer clear of it.

We can offer nothing but a negative prediction for "Don." If he is not bunged up in an auto accident or murdered because of his unconventional musical experiments, he should make a success, for he has the stuff.

RALPH F. MERKLE

"GUS"

"None but himself can be his parallel."

Let us set the scenery for you, and then we'll put on one of our regular shows. In the background is seen a dining-hall in which there is apparently great merriment. To the right front and several hundred yards from the dining-hall can be seen a large athletic field. To the left is seen an automobile, just at the foot of the entrance. A pantomime is acted out in very dim lights. Six men come out of the hall, and approach the auto. There is suppressed laughter. The machine begins to move, until finally it is out of sight on the right. All is silent, and now the real action begins. A lone character enters from the dining-hall door, goes to the very spot where stood the auto, and begins to eulogize—or words to that effect. The monologue is copyrighted, hence we dare not publish it, but it consisted of a lot of that stuff called gloom. However, this memorable day has glided by, almost as did that automobile glide "over the fields and far away."

But to turn to his scholastic attainments: For the last two years Gus has gone along modestly, quietly, doing that which came his way to do, and developing his new method of chemical analysis by inspection. No painful hours spent with reactions, precipitates, filtrates, and acid-burns for Gus. A look, a sniff, a squint, a second's deep, reflective, ponderous, absorbing thought, then—"This stuff contains Ag, Mn, and Ca. I'm ready for another solution."

The scientific world eagerly awaits the publication of "Analysis by Inspection. Ralph R. Merkle." The publication of this will assure a comfortable fortune for Ralph, and then—what?

REUBEN E. MILLER

"ENICK"

"Care to my coffin adds a nail, no doubt,
But every grin draws another one out."

Far down the pike a cloud of dust arises and with ever increasing thickness comes nearer and nearer. The next instant our fast young friend rides past in all the glory of his dust-covered clothes and grimy face.

Looking after the motor-cycle now rapidly receding in the distance, someone sagely remarks, "Is it any wonder, then, that people get killed when they come tearing along at such a rate of speed?" But in spite of this reproach the Easton speed merchant welcomes us none the less heartily with his cheerful grin.

This same grin is really a remarkable thing and well worth seeing. To catch it at its best, however, you must merely mention the magic name of West Chester Normal. It has in divers ways been explained why these two words should produce such a magic effect. Suffice it to say that West Chester sure does have a wonderful effect on the map of Rube's face.

There are two other things that must also be mentioned in passing. The first, Rube's track work, speaks for itself and requires no attention from us. The second is a tendency toward extreme exaggeration.

We will save ourselves the trouble of predicting Rube's future. We know full well that one morning as he speeds Muhlenbergward sunk deep in his thoughts of West Chester an obtrusive telegraph pole will intercept his onward course, and Rube will shuffle off this mortal coil. * * * Please omit flowers. ERNEST W. MOYER

"BEAUTY"

"Tall and graceful as a lily."

This youth, when but an infant, in true pastoral fashion, exercised his vocal chords while driving the cows through the rural roads of Perkasie. But Milton, who knew a great deal, said:

"Alas, what boots it with incessant care
To tend the homely, slighted, shepherd's trade,
And strictly meditate the thankless
Muse?"

Were it not better done, as others use,
To sport with Amaryllis in the shade,
Or with the tangles of Neaera's hair?"

So even said our youthful friend, and since then he has given up following cows. But though he has left the cows to come home wagging their tails behind them, he has by no means given up his flute-playing, and is become a regular Pan (Wear-Ever) with the pipes.

One of Ruff-neck's characteristics is his fondness for making noise of every shape and form. You can see him at all times in the dorms either playing a tune on his ribs or yodeling merrily or scratching the transom panes with his key, producing an ear-splitting screech. Do you wonder that we feel sure he will be heard from, long after he has left us to go out into the world? If we were to suggest a field of action, we would say that he might make a good foreign missionary among the cannibals, for he is too skinny to make good cats and could work out his own salvation by furnishing them music for their meals.

“Care not for the reward but simply for the truth of your speaking.”

Only once in a century does a Napoleon appear. A Demosthenes or a Bismarck characterizes another epoch, while Henry VIII was the central figure of a great historical period. Mrs. Rorer wrote a cook book. Never before in the life of the nations have the dominant traits of these great people appeared in one person. Now the seemingly impossible has been accomplished, and Walter L. Reisner, with his pentagonal personality, treads this mundane sphere.

But with sad and bowed heads we must admit, yea, with sad and tearful voices we must confess, that there is a darker side to this scintillating blaze of glory. Sadly, we admit this secret. Reisner likes to cook and has a most effeminate love of tidiness. He can, like Henry VIII, talk to the ladies for hours, but mainly on the subject of cooking. You may think that with all of these feminine traits in his nature Reisner never shows the warlike tendencies that also exist. Here is the test. Make a nice long chalk mark on the green burlap on the walls of his room and observe closely.

Demosthenes appears first, and in matchless eloquence tells of Reisner's grievances. Napoleon concocts a superhuman piece of strategy which is carried out by the iron hand of Bismarck. All of this time, Henry VIII is hobnobbing with Mrs. Rorer.

What will Reisner do? With his pentagonal personality he should be able to tackle anything from leading an army to teaching Domestic Science, so we leave the whole thing up to Reisner.

RICHARD J. SCHMOYER

Various earnest persons have tried to create the impression that the motto by which Schmooyer orders his affairs is “Thue recht und scheue niemand!” This “Do right and fear no one” is a nice, moral motto of large copybook prestige, and we all should live up to it—should, we say. But the point is this—this may be Dick’s afternoon tea motto; but, his genuine, hard tooled, daily practice motto isn’t any pale pink fluff like that. His real motto is “Raus mit ’em!” And who is there to say me nay?

Schmooyer rarely does other than condemn. His concern seems to be to smash everything; but the remaking after the smash is of no interest to him. He is the pessimist of our class. Everything is wrong, and he conceives it his duty to tell us that, without going to the bother of suggesting remedies. Once in a great while he supports some measure, but not often. He likes to bark a few barks for the sake of opposition, and then he takes the consequences.

“Rich” is a great orator—has been from a mere boy on up. Sophronia posts a program—Dick is on for an oration—Society is postponed—Dick has a key to the hall—the oration is delivered to an audience of chairs. This little scene only shows that distinction must result from such ardent and active interest. The way he works up his oratory in some of our heated class meetings is enough to give anybody perpetual aphasia.

ARTHUR B. SEIDEL

"He hath known you but three days and already you are no stranger."

These calmly beaming features are the personal property of none other than Arthur B. Seidel. Although his picture would seem to indicate a peaceably inclined nature, we grieve to say that, as is often the case, appearances are deceiving. Without this orator the dinner-hour debates would lose much of their zest, more of their picturesqueness, and most of their volume. From which fact it is reasonably safe to infer that Arthur will some day make a wonderful statesman.

Nevertheless, and notwithstanding, Arthur has always been a patriotic member of our class. His slogan, calculated to promote class spirit, has ever been "Fellers, we gotta git together." Whenever he states this fact, his entire countenance lights up with that seraphic look seen only on unsuccessful reformers. Yet Arthur still perseveres in this respect, and undoubtedly will reap his reward—in Heaven probably, for this is a cruel world.

But no article about Arthur—not even an obituary—would be complete unless mention were made of his home town. Arthur comes from Reading and does not hesitate to admit it. Nay, even more, he even boasts about it. We, fearing his powers of debate, do not dare to contradict him, and he still labors under his fond illusion. Let us leave him to his sad fate, not, however, without uttering the prayer that he may some day realize his mistake and center his affections on a more deserving object.

HARRY W. SMELTZER

“A neat and natty gentleman.”

Upon his arrival, Harry plunged right in, first into the bowl fight, then into the society of the town, finally, under the influence of his room-mate, into his studies. In fact he had the real college boy spirit. But there came a time when all this lost its charm —when the string of red St. Valentine's Day hearts that draped his mantel hung unobserved and meaningless. The Calsmith Stock Company, with the inimitable Anderson (inimitable except by Snyder), came to town and usurped the uppermost position in his thoughts. Schooled in the study of modern actors and acting by attendance at the Reading Airdrome; where all the biggest hits are shown, our hero, in the capacity of dramatic critic, established headquarters at the Lyceum. From this vantage point, surrounded by a coterie of admiring followers, he weekly gave forth his opinion.

But though “Skinny” is a man of literary note, he is also an athlete of considerable ability. We, as well as the Sophs, found that out in our first football game. Besides repeating in the next year's game, he did service for us in baseball that we have cause to remember.

“Skinny” is an interesting talker on nearly every subject from religion to cream-separators. The latter are his hobby, and it is to be depended upon that if he once begins discussing relative merits of the Sharpless and De Laval machines he'll keep it up all evening.

Will he be successful? He's got the “gift of gab,” so there's no question about it.

HENRY L. SNYDER

There never is much competition over the honor of being the homeliest man in college. No one man has made a monopoly on that. It is different, however, when it comes to being the handsomest student. This is extremely difficult—almost impossible, for no matter what you yourself may think concerning your manly pulchritude, or what the fair sex may think—or say they think—there are some one hundred and seventy-five out of a possible hundred and seventy-seven students each of whom individually claims he fills that handsomest bill—and there is no way of getting a consensus of opinions.

However, I can go thus far: Reaching out to Old Zionsville, I therefore, by virtue of the authority conferred on me, hereby and with full knowledge of the consequences, do select, nominate, name and otherwise determine upon H. L. Snyder, of that city. Now then, Snyder has my vote and his own, which make two. So, admitting, as he does, that “Schnitz” is the handsomest man in college, Mr. Snyder strives earnestly to look the part.

Our regular photographer was not allowed to make this photograph. Snyder was afraid he would mutilate his face, so this was “took” by special photographer, Fifth Avenue.

We must say this one thing—that Snyder has been a faithful 1915-er. He argues well and in most beautiful language—so say some; others say he is absolutely punk. Far be it from me to strike the general average, but in his future life I am sure he will be very successful either as a lawyer or a side-show barker.

EDWARD H. STOLZENBACH

“HICK”

“Why, 'tis an Editor; of course he has no time for fussing.”

We would first speak of our hero's name. No one has ever been able to determine of just what nationality Hick really is. His English name Edward is belied by his German name Stolzenbach, and both are belied by the Irish cognomen Hickey. The only possible explanation of these phenomena is that “Hick” must be descended from all nations and all bloods.

We next pass on to Edward's extreme modesty. His motto and guiding precept is, “Be courteous and friendly with everybody—but not modest. Modesty won't get anyone anywhere.”

And isn't it the truth? This world is filled with shrinking violets who might have grown to gorgeous sunflowers but for their innate modesty.

And now let us turn to Hick's native town, Lima, usually put on the map of Ohio for beauty's sake. Of this metropolis we are told by Edward, very modestly again, to be sure, “Lima is the best town in the world, bar none. Largest insane asylum in the world, all concrete and no corners. Trollies? Why, these are mere apologies for the ears we have in Lima.” He continues in this strain ad lib till his vocal organs tire. Through all of the above are interspersed tales of the wonderful qualities of Stolzenbach's “Better—Not” and “Etmore” bread.

The future of our beloved Editor-in-chief is easy to predict. In spite of his marvelous intellectuality he will degenerate into a baker. Such is his elected field of endeavor, a noble one, to be sure, provided that he does not some day use the wrong reagent and kill off the whole town of Lima.

RAYMOND C. WALTERS

“RAY”

“At sight of thee my gloomy soul clears up.”

Raymond C. Walters is the next of the more or less famous members of our class. His claim to honor and renown is his birthplace, which still remains the spot of his earthly sojourn,—the ancient and historic city of Rittersville, Pa. Ray is thoroughly imbued with pride of his native town and always staunchly defends it against the insulting attacks of certain ill-mannered persons. He is never at a loss to find some good in it, and if his public-spiritedness continues we can not help but predict that some day the metropolis which he honors by his presence will choose him for that highest station of honor and responsibility, Chief of its single fire company.

When we review the scholastic records of this son of German nobility, we can give naught but praise. As an exponent of the noble and elevating art of passing with the least possible work, Ray is without a peer. Moreover he is generally acknowledged to be the most skillful rider of untamed steeds that ever graced the halls of Muhlenberg. Ray modestly explains his endeavors by saying that if he does try to study, he falls asleep before he has fairly started and so he has long since given up the attempt.

Ray has two aims in life, to become happily married and also a minister. We can not say which is his greatest desire, but we hope that the one may not interfere with the other. By having such a two-fold aim he again displays his wisdom, for even if disappointed in the one we can hardly believe that he will fail in both. From the foregoing diagnosis it will therefore appear that success is the only possible outcome of this gentleman's life.

"Unlearned men, of books, assume the care."

Alienists tell us that madness results from two causes: a severe physical shock, and the sight of others already afflicted. We do not know whether the bowl-fight of our Freshman year was sufficient to supply the first cause or whether the sight of us about him fulfilled the second condition, but we do know that as long as we have known him Bill's madness (or shall we call it genius?) has ever set itself before us. Usually it shows itself in a pseudocynical tirade upon established customs, conventions, and traditions, with occasional gleams of intelligence.

But we must not slight Werner's accomplishments, for, besides eating ice-cream, making bad puns, attending the movies, and criticizing things in general, Bill has done some things worth while. As an editor Bill has some reputation, for he put out the best Calendars and Programs yet produced, and as Assistant Editor of this book has done much to make it a success. Now, after contributing generously to "The Muhlenberg" for three years, he has been elected Editor of that monthly. Bill is a basketball man of some repute and in tennis was a big half of the team for two years and so may be said, to have been the whole team.

But we cannot hope with mere words to give you a clear appreciation of this versatile youth who condescends to live his life among such lowly souls as we are. If you would really know him you must first see him in actual life. So, if not too lazy, go to his room and visit him—it will pay you, for Bill's genius radiates forth from him, and you cannot fail to derive a little of it for yourself.

THEODORE F. WICHMANN

"TED"

"I'm not in the roll of common men."

It happens that there are some men who offer all of themselves to you in your first conversation and from that time on the opinions that we have formed need not be changed. Others, while as friendly and as cordial as the first, persist in concealing their true self from you and offer it finally in niggardly portions. Of this class the opinions must be constantly changing, and as a consequence there are a great many varying opinions afloat. Wiedmann is of the latter class, and after a year's sojourn among us had begun to reveal his true self.

If he has been guilty of any great amount of wrongdoing, he has kept it to himself. His triumphs he likewise keeps, and only occasionally do they leak out. His greatest exploit was the demanding and receiving of recompense for some "eats" that were grabbed from him. The demand is usual, but the payment is almost unprecedented. It thus begins to look as if Wiedmann were also a smasher of precedent.

Wiedmann is also some teacher. He is not poor at chess, but in four games he taught a Senior so much about the game that the aforementioned Senior proceeded to trim him in the most decided style. Of course there are those that will lay this victory to the Senior's superior mentality, but we think otherwise and repeat that Wiedmann is some teacher.

He is looking forward to medicine as his future. We think that he will succeed and are inclined to believe from the "incident of the stolen eats" that he will have the smallest number of dead accounts of any M.D. in Rochester.

LEVI N. YIENGST

"If smiles will keep a man alive
I'll live till I am ninety-five."

Some people are born famous, others acquire fame, while still others have it thrust upon them. Levi Yiengst belongs to the last class. From the time he innocently and unsuspectingly wore a derby on poster night, an act unprecedented in the annals of the college, he has had fame, or rather notoriety, pushed, shoved, and heaped upon him. One such act would have been enough on the part of ordinary mortals, but for Levi it did not suffice, so he followed it up next night with another deed of daring. At the dead of night, clad in football togs, he sneaked stealthily about in search of the other half of the Lebanon County Club who had mysteriously disappeared. With true class spirit he began to send out the alarm that the Sophs were up and doing, by rousing classmates in such effective ways as spilling alarm clocks in their faces as they slept. Fortunately the matter ended in the return of the missing member of the club and Levi was able to sleep once more in peace. All this took place in his first week and it can readily be imagined to what an extent his renown has increased since then.

To get a more definite idea of Yiengst's deeds (and misdeeds), we must refer you to his record, by which you will see how war-like Levi's nature is. Moreover, when you realize that he expects to become a minister, you will agree that Charlemagne, who converted the Saxons with the sword, will have nothing on Levi and his probable methods of conversion.

MARK S. YOUNG

"He has done the work of a true man."

Our class, and especially the Pagans, were conscious of a distinct gain when Mark S. Young, forsaking the Specials, decided to fight under the banner of 1915. The Ministers viewed his coming with fear, for great tales of his baseball fame spread around and, like all tales, gained in the passing. No doubt, even at that early day, they saw their hopes of winning the Pagan-Minister game begin to vanish.

Young is somewhat of a chemist, and, as developed in the lecture room, holds some decided views on the behavior of $C_2H_5(OH)$ and Peruna. Lack of space forbids us to quote his masterly arguments as to the identity of these two articles, but we must ask you to bear with us in the belief that they were valid.

The value of Young in the Pagan-Minister basketball game cannot be over-estimated, and there is no doubt that much of the Pagan success was due to his efforts.

But despite the manly accomplishments that have preceded, we cannot help but think that there is a gentler, more sentimental side to his nature that has hitherto been concealed. Occasionally we witness the usual far-away look that is followed by the reminiscent smile that betokens much to those who know.

His future is doubtful, but if Miss Whoversheis finally captures him there is no doubt that the name of Mark S. Young will be heard throughout the depth and the breadth of this glorious nation of ours. Such is the power of woman.

SOPHOMORE HISTORY

College again opened on the eighteenth of September, in the second year of the 1916 class's history, with a class somewhat increased numerically but with a spirit of greater love and service for the dear old Alma Mater. The advent of a new collegiate year brought with it an unusually large number of Lehigh Valley and Berks County rustics, in company with many other high school and prep school graduates who months before had boasted to fond parents and awed sweethearts that "I'm goin' to Muhlenberg College to school next year."

Accordingly the newcomers came on so "high a horse" that green buttons, modest wearing apparel, with various other admonitory rules and regulations were not sufficient to make them realize that intellectually they were still in their "swaddling clothes" and should be seen and not heard. However, thumpings for the thick-headed, midnight walks for the girders, and "Louisiana baths" for the indolent were more than enough to let them feel the power of the unconquered Sophomores.

In the last and fiercest bowl-fight in the history of Muhlenberg, the Sophomores were outnumbered by the Freshmen two to one. And yet on that ever memorable day of October first, amid the drizzling rain and soft yellow clay, the Freshmen were beaten by the grand score of 36-20. Thus the 1916 class went down in history as being the only class at Muhlenberg that ever won two bowl-fights.

How about other work for the college: athletics, programs, calendars, Glee Club, and most of all, true college spirit? Certainly, every one was pleased with the football programs. And the calendars; to quote many who are able to criticise: "They are the best thing of the kind I ever saw." Five men are on the Glee Club and two on the quartette. Greater than these is the true college spirit which the 1916 Class has always displayed for the dear old Alma Mater. Much has been done but greater is yet to come.

FRESHMAN HISTORY

On September 12, 1913, Muhlenberg extended the hand of fellowship to a group of men, the largest that ever entered Muhlenberg as a Freshman class. Shortly after their arrival they brought themselves into prominence by making a grand rush on some of the fair ground officials during fair week.

In the bowl fight with the Sophs, the Freshmen battled most heroically. They went into the fight blindly but bravely. On account of their lack of knowledge concerning the inside of the game, they lost out in the second half. But throughout the fight such a ferocity was displayed that the college authorities, some of whom witnessed the struggle, decided to abolish such brutality forever after.

After the fight the next notable event was the annual football game with the Sophs. For days in advance both teams could be seen training for the conflict. The longed-for day arrived and found both teams eager for the fray. The whistle blew and the fight was on. The Freshmen kept the ball in their possession and slowly but surely smashed their way down the field. The five yard line was reached and the signal was given that was to bring victory to their side, but an accident occurred. The ball was fumbled and, picked up by a Soph, was carried the whole length of the field. The Sophs had won through a fluke. When the call for varsity men was given the Freshmen sent men on the field who were willing and able to defend their Alma Mater. The Freshman class will always be proud of the warriors she has produced.

In literary work also the Freshmen have been successful. In the literary society the Freshmen have taken a prominent part. Even the "Muhlenberg," the official literary organ of the College, has received frequent contributions from one of their number.

In all phases of College activity the Freshmen have acquitted themselves in a praiseworthy manner. They are proud of their Alma Mater and have shown themselves to be willing sons in the furthering of the glory and honor of Muhlenberg.

CLASS HISTORY

As FRESHMEN

As soon as we arrived, things began to move. Even before we reached the switch, stately Seniors, jubilant Juniors, and sullen Sophs were literally clearing out their litter that we might have room to lay our heads and well-stuffed trunks. We got on the job at once. We gave our approval to the Allentown Fair, and deigned to kiss the brunettes. Those were dark days. Next we got the football team in condition to beat F. and M., and a quarter of that team belonged to our class. This done, we felt we needed a rest. So we sent the noisy Sophs away for a few days, had ourselves matriculated, elected Loch treasurer, and went to sleep. We awoke to find our strenuous President (Reisner, not Roosevelt) leading us on to the mid-year's. This obstacle we conquered with our inexhaustible store of knowledge and a large amount of imagination. With the blasé carelessness of a gambler we put a few tenors on the Glee Club, and gave it a good bass for further developments. Then we livened up "The Muhlenberg" with some real literature (right off the reel) and sustained the joke-columns with our wit. Did such stuff stagger us? Not a whit! We had the honor of being the only Freshman class to hold its banquet on the eampus. We feasted well (ask Dr. Haas), but selfishness is no alias of ours. Our hearts went out in sympathy to the poor brutes that roamed the eampus, and we fed them too. Our portion of the track team attracted much attention. In the college play our representatives, male and female, won great applause by their grace, agility, and wonderful impersonations. Our "elass," as Freshmen, was truly undeniable.

1915 AS FRESHMEN

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL TEAM

As SOPHOMORES

As Sophs we were first entrusted with the care and supervision of the Freshies. We chided, rebuked, and chastened them; so that now we can almost point with pride to the results of our handiwork. Our posters, the last in the history of Muhlenberg, were put up for their guidance, and a few Freshies most kindly aided us in the work. We gave their proud hearts a fall by defeating their crack team with a handful of men who had never played football before. We set a new standard by the quality and quantity of our calendars and our football programs. The athletic endeavors of our class were attested by the fact that fully two-thirds of our men received their numerals during this year, and a majority of these also received college monograms or numerals. Realizing that traditions help to foster college spirit, we established the custom of wearing class hats, an institution which the present Sophomore class is continuing.

VIEWS OF FRESHMAN AFTERNOON

Ciarla Of The 48th Class

As JUNIORS

We returned for our third year with all childish things put away, and with a stern resolve to conquer all profs and wise men in knowledge and in argument, or flunk in the attempt. We haven't flunked yet. Our class furnished a greater number of serubs than in previous years and also some good Varsity material in football. But our achievements this year have been intelleetual rather than athletic. We almost alone supported "The Muhlenberg," and won all three prizes in its short story contest. Four live men from our class are members of the Student Council, and four budding journalists represent us on the Press Club. Many of our class also hold responsible positions on "The Muhlenberg" staff, in student body affairs, and on athletic teams. We need hardly mention the immense furore in athletic and professorial circles that the announcement of our Pagan-Minister football game caused. It is unnecessary to recall the intense excitement and enthusiasm that flooded the floor when the Pagans beat the Ministers after a hard-fought game of basketball. In this awful carnage the strenuous efforts of the nineteen odd serubs are much to be commended. In conclusion, as a last proof of our worthiness to uphold the glorious traditions of Muhlenberg College, we need only ask you to continue reading and see for yourself the masterpiece of our class, the 1915 CIARLA.

THE RUBAIYAT OF COLLEGE LIFE

Wake! for the Maid who scatters into flight
The Dust before her with her Broom-stick's might,
Awaits to make your bed, and warning strikes
Your door and so dispels the Dreams of Night.

Ere shouts of late-returning fussers died,
Methought a voice without my chamber cried,
"When all the breakfast is prepared and served,
Why sleeps that lazy Fool so long inside?"

And, as the Gong rang, those who stood before
The Commons shouted "Open then the Door!
You know how little while we have to stay,
And, soon departing, still want something more."

Come, cheer the Team, now for our Viet'ry sing,
And far away your Irksome Lessons fling:
Our Baseball Days have but a little time
To last and now—"Strike One," "Ball Two," and "Bing."

A Box of Candy underneath a Bough,
A Magazine, Electric Fan—and Thou
Beside me chasing all the Flies away—
Oh, Summer School were Paradise enow!

Some for the Girls they've left behind; and some Sigh for an unknown Virgin yet to come;
Oh, take a Kiss, and let the Maiden go,
Thy Lips may ne'er more taste so sweet a Plum!

And those who patient burn the Midnight Oil,
And those who on the Dance Floor trot and toil,
Alike produce but dead, dull Essays, that Once buried, rest forever 'neath the Soil.

The Prize in Gold, Grinds set their Hearts upon,
Draws Interest—or is squandered; and anon,
Like Snow upon the Desert's dusty Faee,
Lighting a little hour or two—is gone.

Think, in this batter'd Class-room Seat,
Beyond which is mere Study, Sleep, and Eat,
How Student after Student with his Notes
Endur'd one fearful Hour this gruesome Treat.

They say the Freshmen and the Soph'more keep
The Halls where Seniors stalk'd and argued deep:
And Dutch, that old Great Dane—the Varsity
Stamps o'er his Head, but eannot break his Sleep.

And this aspiring Man whose tender Brush
Fledges his Upper Lip, denies his Virgin Blush—
Ah, smile upon it kindly! for who knows
But that it vanishes, if one cry “Tush.”

I threw a Bluff on Dope I eould not tell,
Some Letter of a higher Grade to spell:
And by and by my Mark returned to me,
And answer'd, “I thought you'd have that Quiz quite well.”

But the Low Grade reviving old Desires;
The thoughtful Grind to better Work retires,
When the Dread Hand of Prexy falling hard
Flunks him, and Hope of passing Greek expires.

Why, if a Lad can fling the Greek aside,
And swiftly on an English Pony ride,
Were't not a Shame—were't not a Shame for him
All Night o'er well-worn Text-books to abide?

Ah, Prof! could you, dear Prof, and I conspire
To grasp this sorry Seheme of Things entire,
Would we not shatter it to bits—and write
Two new Text-books that call eaeh other “Liar!”

And lately, by my Study Door agape,
Came shining through the Dusk the Proctor's Shape
Bearing a Look of stern Reproaeh; and so
I knew too well that I was in a Serape!

DER JUNIOR AUSFLUG

Nineteen Fifteen's Junior Ausflug was held on March 27, 1914. Profiting by the experiences of the previous Ausflugs, a clear day was chosen for the game and it was decided to go to some place where the chances of getting stuck in the mud were small. In the afternoon the traditional Minister-Pagan game was played. This can best be described by the following quotation from the "Democrat" of the morning after:

The annual game of baseball between the Ministers and Pagans of the Junior Class of Muhlenberg College was played on Muhlenberg field yesterday. It was rightly termed a comedy of errors. Prof. Simpson was undoubtedly the hero of the day, when taking his life in his hands he accepted the position of umpire. His position as the head of the English department was all that saved him from the clutches of the infuriated ministers, who thought that they had the game well in hand after the second inning.

The players, as usual, were attired in all kinds of grotesque uniforms. Reisner resembled a Scotch highlander, Smeltzer a Civil War veteran, and Freed a Pole. The sensation of the game was Kauffman's masterly playing of right field. A glove was entirely too uncertain for him and a ten-quart bucket was used instead. The score:

RESUME OF THE SEASON OF 1913

In response to Kelly's call for football men, new arrivals appeared daily during the first week of September. The "beef" collected on the football field at the end of the first week, comprising new men and old, was really appalling. Two-hundred-pound huskies seemed to be so numerous as to become commonplace, and whenever three or four of the aforementioned gentlemen got mixed up in a scrimmage, the pile had the appearance of a baby mountain. The qualities of these arrivals, however, were not confined to weight alone, for speed was there in abundance. Lightning, well-greased, is the only thing to which some of the men should be compared. Thus, so far as the primary requisites of a team were concerned, Muhlenberg was very well fixed even before college itself opened. Then as the old boys started to trail back, the enthusiasm and spirit began to grow until, inside of three weeks, the majority of us were convinced that the All-American team would surely have to go some to be in our class. Of course, we made no mention of these opinions of ours for fear that many of our opponents, hearing of this phenomenal state of affairs, might cancel their dates and leave us in the lurch.

On September 27 came the first trial of our strength, when we ran up against an institution located at Easton bearing the euphonious name of a great man, Lafayette. The results of the fray, viewed in the cold gray light of the morning after, justified our expectations and excited more fond hopes. The far-famed enemy had failed to do more than hold us to a tie, 7-7, while the papers said that in the second half we had completely outplayed them. (Our fellows said we had done so all through the game—our fellows.) Here is evidently a case where deeds speak louder than words, and we will therefore let that score make a little oration to you all by itself. We cannot, however, refrain from respectfully calling to your attention the fact that one of the illustrious members of our more illustrious class of 1915, Reisner by name, was the man who ran 40 yards, in spite of a game leg, and put the ball within striking distance of the opposing goal-line.

Next on the program came New York University. Gentle reader, what we did to that representative of the metropolis is shameful to relate. It should not be published broadcast in this manner, but duty compels us to admit that N. Y. U. was snowed under by an avalanche, to the tune of 54 to 0. To say the least, it was discourteous of us to go over there with our team at their invitation and then walk over, under, and through them during the entire four periods. Our "fetchin' up" seemed to have been neglected.

After an enforced rest of two weeks, owing to the fact that we were unable to fill an open date on October 11, we were again ready to brave the lion in his den. The lion in this particular case happened to be Gettysburg, but before the game was over it turned out to be the goat instead of the lion. As a goat, however, it did some rather vicious butting before it was finally tied up, with the result that some of our men were far from being in the pink of condition after the game. Nevertheless all's well that ends well, and we ended on the long end of a 20-6 score. The 6 was a mistake due to the interception of one of our forward passes and a 90-yard run by Mahaffie. Accordingly we repeat the words of the poet Tennyson, "We should worry."

During this entire week the time and energy of the Coach and team was devoted to the perfecting of a system of play that would be able to beat Lehigh if at all possible. The energies of the student body were similarly directed, and if spirit and enthusiasm ever deserved to win a football game, ours did. But we were calculating on playing Lehigh a football game. Instead we were initiated into the wonderful mysteries of a new sport which resembled water-polo more closely than any other game known to the public at large. The players wore football togs, but Providence knows that bathing suits would have been vastly more appropriate. The field which unfolded itself to our delighted (?) gaze on this memorable afternoon looked like the Dead Sea. The few hundred Muhlenberg supporters who had braved the elements to see the game wagered on the depth of various swimming-pools which lay before them, as they sat on the stands with the water from their neighbors' umbrellas trickling down their backs or dropping in their shoes. By the time the game was scheduled to begin, everybody was convinced that it would be played in boats, or that the players would at least be supplied with life-preservers. However, we shortly discovered that such was not to be the case. No first-aids were furnished, beyond oodles of rosin. On the very first play an unfortunate Lehigh man landed in the mud with such force that his breathing apparatus was temporarily put out of commission until sympathizers washed out his pipes and wiped off the upper coating of mud from his physiognomy. The men of both teams slid and slipped and slopped and slushed about the field until the fact that they moved was the only thing that distinguished them from the mud on the field. Moreover, this was extremely unfortunate for us, as the heavy ground did not allow our light but fast backfield a chance to get started, while the mere beef on Lehigh's backfield just naturally kept on going, to our disadvantage and dismay. These adverse mudiferous conditions spelt defeat, the first of the season. In spite of a magnificent defense put up by our men on our four-yard line, Lehigh managed to slide Criehton over the goal-line for the only touchdown of the game. So have the Fates decreed it—7-0. In Pace Requiescat.

After this slight and temporary reverse in the fortunes of our Ship of State, we again started on our victorious way. Lebanon Valley, misled into believing that their football team might be able to do something with us, came over to Allentown on the first day of November. We greeted them with open arms—and sent them home with empty hands. Those who mathematically incline said the score at the end of the game was 35-0. But let us hie us hence to greater things.

Now comes the big week. The rumor reached Allentown that a college at Lancaster, laboring under the cognomen of Franklin and Marshall, was flying a pennant on which the magic words were inscribed "On to Muhlenberg." All reports had it that F. and M. was thirsting for revenge for the defeats of the past two years, and was determined to give no quarter to us. Yea, verily, this manifestation of spirit in Lancaster could not but find a counter spirit aroused in Allentown. The chapel was daily converted into a place where "the heathen rage and the lions roar," to quote Dr. Wackernagel; that is, in plain English, cheer-practice was held daily. On Wednesday night the student body attended the Lyceum in a body, while the team occupied boxes. On Friday night a monster smoker was held in the Commons at which we heard prophets and preachers, and even some fakers. When the smoker ended the spirit was so much in evidence that it overflowed all obstacles.

And then the fatal day came. When F. and M. appeared they were given a warm reception—in fact, it was even hot. It rained intermittently throughout the game, at times even poured. But the ardor of the howling mob would not be cooled, while Muhlenberg could not be stopped. In fairness to the visitors it must be confessed that for the first quarter they had us on the run. A fumbled punt recovered by one of their men put us on the defensive until a long run by Henninger again brought us out of danger. Near the end of the second quarter a beautiful forward pass to Hubbard gave us the first touchdown. This seemed to take the starch out of F. and M. and in the second half three more touchdowns were made, the final score being 25-0. Thus did Nemesis avenge the defeat of 33-0 five years ago.

Needless to say, F. and M. was quite peeved, to put it mildly, at the outcome of the game. They frankly admitted, however, that we had some team, which shows that they had more or less good judgment after all. None of them spoke of the banner which had flopped in the breeze during the week and it was generally surmised that it just disappeared. Coach Mayser, it is rumored, sent a telegram to Lancaster after the game, built on Caesar's plan, "Veni, vidi, victus sum", which, being translated means, "I came, I saw them, I got beat up."

This was the state of affairs in F. and M.'s camp after the game, but how entirely different was it in Muhlenberg's. A "Pee-rade" downtown came first. After supper the men celebrated in divers ways and methods at various places of interest throughout town. After thinking and talking it over Sunday, a bonfire was built Monday and lit by Captain Skean at 8:15 Monday evening. Afterwards there were "eats" served in the Commons for patriotic Muhlenbergienses, and the victory slowly but surely faded away into the past.

During the week following our victory over our ancient rivals, practice was very light, yet, behold, when the next Saturday arrived and the Indian Reserves with it, our team continues its steam-rolling contract, and proceeds to flatten out the redskins to the tune of 48-0. The game was hardly more than an uninterrupted march up and down the field, and even when the scrubs entered there was no great difference in our ground-gaining ability. The scalp-hunters were easily bounced on their respective ears in the same style of game in which they were supposed to excel. Once again we refer to the poet, "Let the dead past bury its dead." We will attend to the live past.

And now, gentle reader, uncover your head and speak softly, for you are in the presence of great sorrow. A great bereavement has overtaken us and we wish all due respect to be shown to the sufferers. On Saturday, November 22, the team and a goodly section of the student body traveled to Lewisburg, the home of Bucknell, and was beaten by a team which was outplayed in every quarter.

Muhlenberg + College

Our team made 21 first downs as compared with their 9, yet accident and unlucky breaks time after time threw us back from their goal line. The final score was 14-6 in favor of the enemy, but these figures leave volumes unsaid. Several times the ball approached within fifteen yards of the hostile goal-line, yet always an unforeseen accident lost us our chance to score further. The game was a thriller, full of throbs, but the luck was against us, and Muhlenberg, for the last time of the season and also only the second time, tasted the bitter waters of defeat. She succumbed to the onslaughts of the barbarian hordes assisted by the Fates. * * * The company will please pass around the bier in silence.

Last but not least comes the Thanksgiving Day game with Albright. These untutored natives of Myerstown made their debut in Allentown inflicted with the idea of beating us. Now it is impolite to contradict, and accordingly no one made a move to dispel their fond illusions before the game started. After it once got under way, the dream just naturally faded out, although during the first five minutes when Albright scored a field goal it seemed to them to be permanent. However, they were soon rudely and forcibly awakened, for in spite of all opposition of force or argument we gradually assembled an imposing array of four touchdowns and a field goal, after which Albright decided to relinquish their fond hopes. Benfer was in reality the Albright team, and his lack of support saved Muhlenberg from a harder game. Thus ended the football season, so far as the actual playing of games was concerned.

But there is one more event which belongs to the football season over which we dare not pass. This is the football banquet, the crowning event of the season. It was held at the Antler's Home on December 15th, and was surely some banquet. At this time the letters were awarded and the sweaters and blankets distributed. Also Hubbard was elected to succeed Skean as captain of next's year's team. Thus ended the season of 1913, the most successful and the best in every way that Muhlenberg has ever known.

ALBERT H. SKEAN

CAPTAIN—FULLBACK

“Buck” Skean held the honor of piloting the greatest team that Muhlenberg ever had, but the responsibility of his position did not weigh so heavily upon him as to detract from his playing. Whenever we were in a tight hole and needed a few yards, Skean was the man who was called on to deliver the goods and it was seldom indeed that he failed. On defense he was of great assistance in backing up the line and always tried to fill the team with his own spirit of fight. He has played his last game for Muhlenberg and has left a position that will be hard to fill.

Clubs Of The 48th Class

RIGHT HALFBACK

“Fritz” Heuer is one of the four men who have played their last game for Muhlenberg. He was unfortunate this year in the matter of injuries and was able to play in only a few games during the entire season. He showed his worth last year, however, and it is with deepest regret that we think of his football days as over.

LEFT TACKLE

“Big Jim” Flexer surely did tear loose with a lot of havoc and destruction in the opponent’s line whenever he took the notion. He seemed to take an almost insane delight in fooling the stands and opponents till the test came and then bracing up and stopping every thing that started his way. This was his last year.

MARTIN D. FETHEROLF

CENTER

“Stonewall” Fetherolf fought for two years as a scrub for his place as a varsity center and when he finally reached his goal he made good. He had to play with his brains, since Nature had not endowed him as well with physical strength as others, and without a doubt he was the headiest center that Muhlenberg has ever had. It will seem strange indeed next year to fail to hear Fetherolf’s “Shift right. Shi-i-ift.”

Clarks Of The 48th Class

BENJAMIN A. HUBBARD

LEFT END

“Ben” Hubbard, Captain-elect for 1914, held down the position of left end in the best possible style during the past season. He was very clever in drifting through interference and getting his man. On offense he was of great assistance to the team, for the fact that he was the most reliable man on the receiving end of a forward pass is undisputed.

CLAUDE M. LAUDENSLAGER

QUARTERBACK

For a small man “Laudy” surely did some damage whenever he went into a game. He ran the team in a consistent style and made very few errors of judgment. On defense he was a deadly and sure tackler and made every effort count.

WALTER L. REISNER

QUARTERBACK

Reisner, the Varsity quarter, improved on his past reputation this last year. He was heady and full of pep and usually kept the team on the jump. When it came to the crisis of a game one could count on seeing Reisner running about behind the line filling the men with the superabundance of fight that he possessed.

Clubs Of The 48th Class

D. FRANKLIN DAY

LEFT GUARD

“Pud” Day, the first of the Philadelphia quartette, surely made a name for himself during his first year at Muhlenberg. He even carried his matchless good nature with him on the football field, and his fiery red head was always in the middle of every line play. He is a comer, and we warn you to watch him next year.

LOUIS J. HAYES

“Louie” Hayes is another of the men who left all of their Brotherly Love on the side lines when the game began and made things very lively for all opposing men when they came into the little portion of the field under his jurisdiction. In his realm he was a stern judge and severely punished all who trespassed across his boundaries.

“Kidder” Caskey was unfortunate in being kept out of a few games this year because of his injuries, but when he played he showed great promise; and there is no doubt that before he leaves Muhlenberg he will leave a record that any backfield man will be proud of.

J. HOWARD. BERRY

LEFT HALFBACK

“Nig” Berry was undoubtedly the star of the Philadelphia bunch and did much to give them their reputation. He depends somewhat upon his speed to gain ground, but this is mingled with the finest sidestepping that has been seen for a long time. He has several long runs to his credit which he made after eluding five or more tacklers. He did the punting and drop-kicking.

Clubs Of The 48th Class

ARTHUR D. RODERICK

RIGHT GUARD

“Roddy” always played a hard consistent game, and clearly has demonstrated his ability as a line man. He was always on the job and worked at top speed from whistle to whistle. On offense he leaves a hole that you could drive a wagon through.

CHARLES F. COPLEY

RIGHT TACKLE

“Chas.” although he was assigned merely one position to play, usually tried, and succeeded, in playing every position from center to end. If there was any man on his side of the line that had more than he could handle Copley was right there to help him out and still handle his own man in the usual style.

THOMAS J. BRENNAN

FULLBACK

“Patty” is another one of the men who can always be depended upon when there is a gain to be made. Although he was merely substitute for the bigger part of the season, his showing in the games he played will tend to rest our minds on the fullback position for next year.

Clubs Of The 48th Class

RIGHT GUARD

“Bill” Ritter, an Allentown man, filled the shoes of the right guard in about the best possible manner this year. He was heady, aggressive, and capable, and with this combination there is small doubt that a man will fill his position well. He has two more years to play and will do great good before he leaves.

RIGHT HALFBACK

“Pete” Henninger was laid up at the very start of the season by a bad knee which kept him from showing his true form in the games he played. However, he did well enough to gain the nickname of “Jackrabbit” and should surprise some of the natives by his showing during the coming season.

F. J. DETLING

RIGHT END

“Jim” Detling was another of the men who took care of the right wing of the line and he “seen his duty and done it noble.” Although only a Freshman, he did some stunts on the field that older men would have liked to have done. Jimmie’s future appears very bright to us.

Carls Of The 48th Class

LEFT GUARD

As a working partner for "Roddy," it would be hard to find a better man than Seidel. With his 200 pounds of beef hitting one side of the line and "Roddy's" 203 landing on the other side, is there any cause for wonder why his smiling face usually bobbed up from the middle of the mass after a line plunge had shattered itself against our defense?

LEFT GUARD

Whenever it happened that Seidel was injured, we could always count on Hollenbaugh filling his position in very ereditable manner. He still shows lack of experience in college football, but we think that next year will round him into some of the best line material at Muhlenberg.

CARL A. ERICKSON

CENTER

Muhlenberg was indeed fortunate in eenters this year, and to supplement the work of "Stonewall" Fetherolf we had "Pop" Erickson, who was as reliable as any man could be expected to be. His passing in the Lehigh game where the field was ankle-deep in mud was unsurpassed, and not one bad pass was chalked up against him during this game.

BASKETBALL SEASON—1913-1914

Muhlenberg's basketball season opened with a game with Philadelphia College of Pharmaey, which we won by heaving the ball over the rafters for a 23-21 victory. An extra period was needed to break a tie and to demonstrate our superiority conclusively.

The following evening we held the University of Pennsylvania five to a 24-17 score on their own floor. Our passing excelled theirs throughout the game, but better shooting kept them a few points ahead at all times. Although "merely a practice game for Penn," this good showing gave Penn a shock and instilled confidence into our men.

Taking advantage of the absence of Hubbard and Ritter from our line-up, Susquehanna University beat us in the first home game of the season to the tune of 33-21. Copley's foul shots and Afflerbach's field goals saved us from total annihilation.

Our comparatively raw team was no match for Lehigh's veterans, most of whom opposed us last year. The result was that Lehigh was able to inflict upon us the first decisive defeat that we have suffered at their hands; and their 72-21 victory caused them unbounded surprise and joy.

Not content with the absence of Hubbard and Ritter, Fate and a rusty nail removed Copley from the Lafayette game, and a consequent lack of team work was responsible for a 44-13 defeat at Easton. Our men played very creditably.

While the team was still working into shape, Seton Hall managed to defeat us, 23-17, at South Orange. The game was well contested throughout, and our men showed a marked improvement in team-work and passing. Leisy played a strong game both defensively and offensively.

Twenty-four hours later we met Pratt Institute at Brooklyn, and went under with the short end of a 27-18 score. Up to the last few minutes the game was close with both teams neck-and-neck for victory, but the Pratt five finally nosed out ahead.

Over in Jersey we next met defeat, when Rutgers College eaged 24 to our 14 points. Our passing in this contest was better than in any previous game this season, and only our tossing was a bit off color. Bill Ritter played a snappy game, and scored half of our field goals.

On the night before Washington's Birthday we came into our own, and defeated Lafayette, 26-20. It was the best game, the largest crowd, the biggest attendance of alumni, of the season. It killed the slump, and made Allentown hum for several days. Copley and Ritter starred.

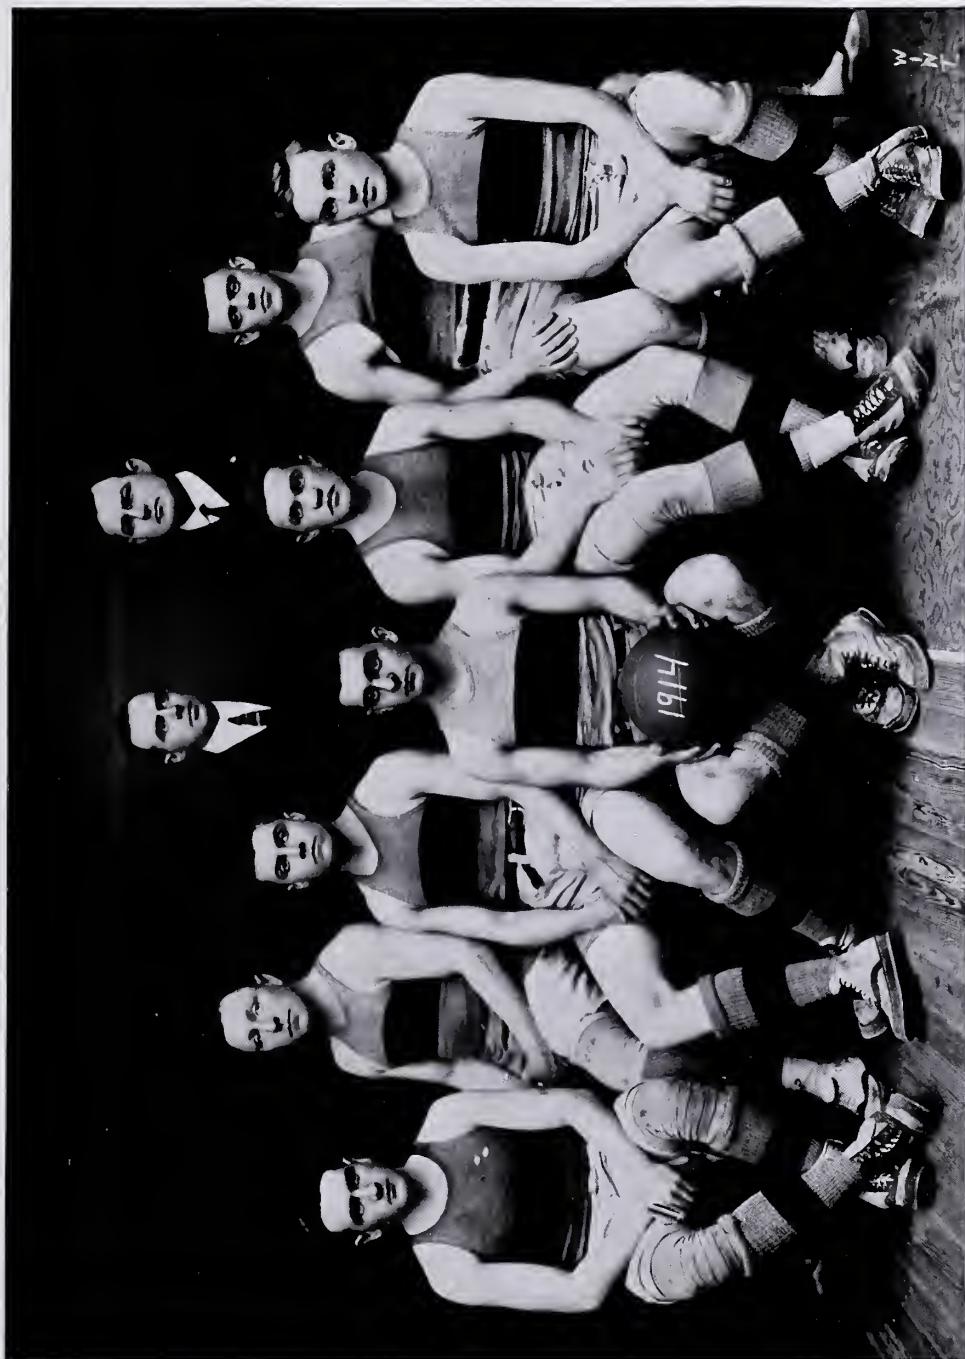

The only doubtful thing about the Lebanon Valley game was the number of points we would beat them by, and forty minutes of play gave the answer—39-22. Afflerbach played a magnificent, dashing game, was high man in field goals, but in the very last play of the evening was badly bumped and compelled to give up basketball for the rest of the season.

Between the halves of the Fresh-Soph game, Muhlenberg held a serimimage with the local Y. M. C. A. team in a contest replete with sensational shots and phenomenal foul-tossing. The two teams were never more than five points apart, and the suspense was nerve-racking. Score, 25-21.

The last home game was merely a toss-up to our basket. The Philadelphia College of Pharmacy five were outweighed, outplayed, and badly beaten. The seore, 44-15, scarcely does justice to the rapidity with whieh the ball sailed through the net. Louis Hayes, shifted from guard to Afflerbach's place at forward, showed most satisfactorily that he could also shoot.

In a cosy little cage at Lebanon Valley we were handed a lemon with an annoying inscription, 28-27, on it. "Twas the closest seore of the season, and a most thrilling affair throughout. Detling was constantly on the jump and played a strong defensive game.

Next day the season closed with a defeat at Selinsgrove, administered by the Susquehanna University stars. Considering that we were up against one of the best teams of the State, and that on our home floor we had merely held them to the score of 33-21, it must be said that the defeat was not a reversal of form, but a proof of improvement in the face of disheartening handicaps. Score, 39-21.

TRACK SEASON, 1913

THE PENN RELAYS

Muhlenberg opened her track season at the 19th Annual Relay Carnival held at the University of Pennsylvania, April 26, 1913, in which her relay team, composed almost entirely of new material, won fourth place. Earl Loser was the only runner of last year who competed. Vreeland ran the first quarter mile for Muhlenberg and finished in third place. Huer, in the second quarter, ran an excellent race and finished second. Loser finished the third quarter in the same position. Dietz the last runner, held second place until the hundred yard mark, when he was passed by both St. John's and Gettysburg, who won second and third places respectively, the latter just nosing out Muhlenberg. Franklin and Marshall finished first with a lead of about eight yards. It was the fastest quarter mile a relay team from Muhlenberg ever ran. The winning time was 3:33 over against 3:37 $\frac{1}{2}$ of the preceding year. The weather was ideal and all the events of the day were extremely interesting, especially the exciting dashes and hurdle races.

THE GETTYSBURG MEET

The Muhlenberg track team met their old rival collegians from the battlefield town, May 13, 1913. The Gettysburgians, coming here with the expectation of wiping out the stinging defeat which they received from the Cardinal and Gray in last year's dual meet, barely realized their expectations in the final score of 65 to 60. Under fair weather conditions, with the track in excellent shape, and a fair crowd present to cheer on the athletes, the Muhlenberg "leggers" broke three records.

Two of the new records were hung up by Rahn, who won the two events in which he competed, the broad and high jumps. In the high jump he cleared the bar at 5 feet, 7 inches, the former record being 5 feet, 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches. He also did three inches better than the former record in the broad jump, leaping 20 feet, 7 inches. Captain Skean created a new mark in the discus throw, bettering his previous mark of 107 feet, 3 inches, by 4 feet, 7 inches, hurling the discus 111 feet, 10 inches. However, he did not show his true form in the shot put and hammer throw and these two events were won by visiting athletes, whereas the Muhlenberg supporters had pinned their hopes on Skean or Reisner coming through with both these field events. Reisner was disqualified in the hammer throw, by reason of his inability to keep within the seven foot circle.

It looked like a runaway race for the visitors when they captured firsts in the first five events, but our athletes came back strong in the four succeeding events, Rahn capturing the high jump, Skean the discus throw, Bucks the two mile run, and Rahn the broad jump. There was a good finish in the 220 yard dash and it looked as if Weber was going to win but Kulp breasted the tape several inches ahead of the Muhlenberg runner. Hubbard cleared the bar at 9 feet, 9 inches, the winning height, in the pole vault, but his hands took the bar with him. In the vault-off for second place he cleared the bar with ease at that height.

THE INTER-CLASS MEET

The classes of Muhlenberg College showed great enthusiasm and spirit in their inter-class track meet held May 10, 1913. For several weeks every athlete of the various classes appeared on the track trying his skill and strength in each of the fourteen events. The beautiful cup which was donated by Prof. Reese and which was to become the property of the class winning the highest number of points added still greater life and enthusiasm to the competition.

The contest was closely fought and during the entire meet the number of points that the different classes had scored were nearly the same. The final outcome of the meet was not decided till the last event and the competition was so keen that it was possible for the last event to decide in favor of three classes. The final score of the meet was: Seniors, 37; Juniors, 34; Sophomores, 32; and 23 for the Freshmen.

MIDDLE STATES INTERCOLLEGIATE TRACK MEET

The first Middle States Intercollegiate track meet was held at Lafayette College, Easton, May 17, 1913, and was attended by Muhlenberg's entire track team. This was the first time that most of them were thrown into real competition but, nevertheless, the showing that they made was creditable, although the number of points scored was small. The only events in which we scored were the High Jump and the Mile Run. Dietz, who took fourth place in the mile, ran the best race of his career, and the time that he made was excellent. Rahn, the only other man to score for Muhlenberg, took the High Jump very easily, when he beat out the man from Swarthmore by clearing 5 feet $7\frac{1}{2}$ inches. The other men, while they failed to score, made very good showings and have gained the experience that will make them more dangerous in the future.

THE LAFAYETTE MEET

Muhlenberg lost her first dual meet with Lafayette by a score of $65\frac{1}{2}$ to $46\frac{1}{2}$. Considering the strength of the visitors, Muhlenberg made a good showing, winning the shot-put, mile run, broad jump, and 880 yard run, besides scoring a tie in the running high jump.

In this event Muhlenberg was unfortunate, as Rahn was suffering from a badly sprained ankle, sustained early in the meet. Weber, the lively little sprinter, ran his best race of the season in the 220, finishing in 24 flat. The crowds of spectators both pro and con were startled when the judges announced "Weber second," and the sympathies all went out to the gritty little runner. Bucks again fell down in his race with the speedy Lafayette two-miler. While Muhlenberg was defeated, its athletes broke two records when Skean did 41 feet 10 inches in the shot-put, and when Vreeland took the 880 yard run in 2:06 $\frac{1}{4}$.

COACH McCAA

The unexpected resignation of Coach Kelly, in the early part of March, caused the glowing prospects for a successful year of athletics for 1914-1915 to grow dim. For the last three years we have been so accustomed to having the Coach Peerless train our teams that his resignation seemed to insure disaster. The Athletic Association started immediately to remedy the difficulty and, after a long and thorough investigation of more than a score of applicants, decided upon George McCaa, of Lafayette, '10, as coach. The excellent reports and records that have preceded Mr. McCaa have dispelled the feeling of uncertainty that was growing apace.

He was born at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., March 8, 1884, and graduated from Wilkes-Barre High School in 1904. He entered Lafayette in the fall of the same year and became a member of the Delta Upsilon fraternity. He soon made a name for himself as an all-around athlete but was forced to leave school in the middle of his Sophomore year. He returned to Lafayette in 1907 and graduated, with the degree of Mining Engineer, in 1910. During his Senior year he was assistant coach to Folwell, who had charge of athletics at Lafayette at that time. He was an all-around athlete and won his "L" in the major sports at Lafayette. Henry M. Edwards, Jr., Coach of Lafayette Baseball Team during the seasons of 1910 and 1911, says of him: "Mr. McCaa is best known as a football player. It is my opinion that he is no less a basketball man than he is a football man and no less a track man than a baseball man. In all, Mr. McCaa ranks high among the best all-around athletes we have in the East."

During his last two years in college he was picked as Second All-American Fullback by Walter Camp. Especially in his Senior year, this decision was disputed and such prominent newspapers as "The New York Sun," "The Philadelphia Record," and "The Philadelphia Press" took decided exception to Camp's decision and picked him as First All-American Fullback. George E. McLinn, Sporting Editor of the "Philadelphia Press," said of him at this time: "I, without hesitation, choose Mr. McCaa for a position on the All-American Eleven of the 'Philadelphia Press.' Few men, during the season of 1909, perfected the forward pass as he did. As a punter he compared with such men as Captain Coy, of Yale, Allerdice, of Michigan, and Manot, of Harvard. He was a sure drop kicker and goal kicker and a born leader of men." He was also a ten-second man in the hundred and often made the high hurdles in less than sixteen.

In 1910 he was elected coach at Whitman College, Walla Walla, Washington, where, "taking a team of inexperienced men, he developed a machine which stood well with the best in the Northwest." In 1911, graduate coaching being adopted at Whitman, he accepted the position as coach at the New Hampshire State College. He left here in the early part of October to coach Lafayette where he remained until he accepted the position at Muhlenberg.

THE EASTON MEET

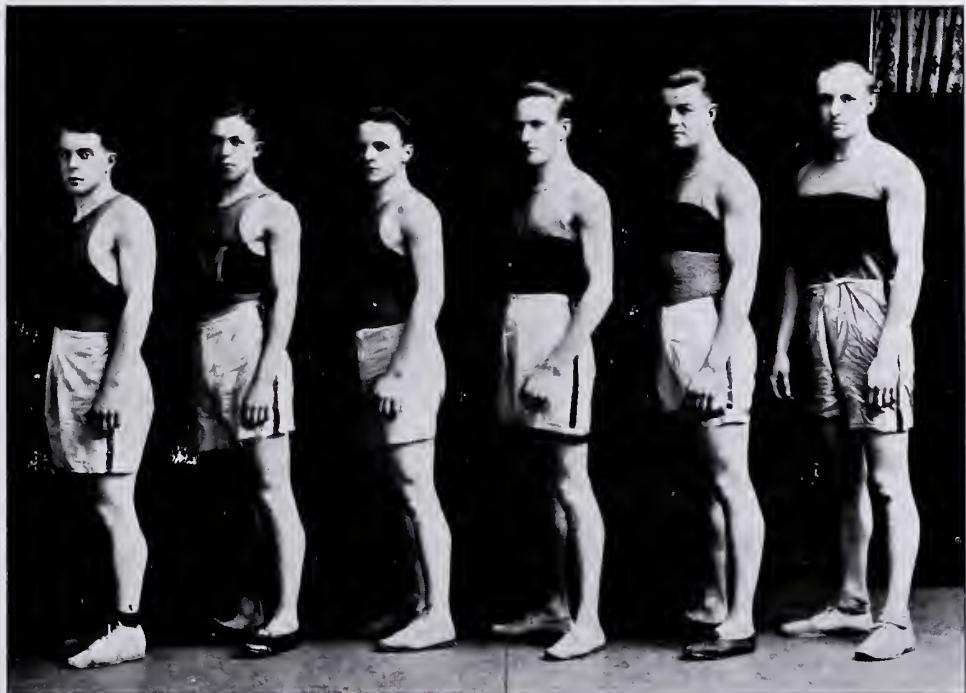

The first indoor track and field meet of the Easton Athletie Assoeiation, sanctioned by the Middle Atlantie States Association of the Amateur Athletie Union, was held Tuesday evening, March 10th, 1914, at the City Guard Armory. The athletes present represented the colleges, preparatory schools, and athletic clubs of the Lehigh Valley. Besides these, there were men representing the athletic clubs of Boston, Philadelphia, and other cities and made the competition more interesting.

In the 35 yard dash preliminaries, Weber and Wichman won their heats, and in the final they seored first and second respectively. Berry seored second to Burke of the Boston A. A. In the 1,000 yard run, Berry had a very poor start but made up for this by the masterly running of his race. Miller won his preliminary against a fast field in the 35 yard hurdles and seored second in the finals. Without a doubt, the most exeiting event of the evening was the mile relay. Muhlenberg and Bethlehem Preparatory School were the scratch teams and coneeded handieaps up to 97 yards. Muhlenberg was represented in this event by Miller, Parker, Heuer, and Berry, running in the order named. This event was won by Lafayette, while Muhlenberg seored second place.

The shot put, which promised to bring forth very close competition because of the caliber of the men entered, was called off during the evening. Skean, in a practice put, "busted" the shot and another was unable to be obtained in time for the event.

Lafayette won the meet, with Muhlenberg a very close second, and it really seems as if the breaking of the shot lost the meet for us, since Skean seemed to have an excellent ehance of winning. This was our first trial of the indoor sport and the showing that we made reflects well deserved credit on the men who were entered.

BASEBALL

The growing agitation for the fourth intercollegiate sport at Muhlenberg finally took concrete form last November. In the midst of the most successful football season in our history, the Student Body decided that the time was ripe for the introduction of baseball at Muhlenberg. At first it was thought necessary that, as a result of this, track would have to be eliminated. The abundance of material for both sports, and the coming of Coach McCaa, of All-American fame, rendered this unnecessary. Muhlenberg is now represented in all of the major Intercollegiate sports.

H. W. Nenow, '14, was elected Manager, and arranged a well balanced schedule. A southern trip was planned, but this could not be arranged, since the time was too late, and the other schedules had been filled. "Pop" Reese, the Father of Athletics, is back of the new sport, heart and soul, and with the usual result that things are moving along in the best of style. He is the one familiar figure on the diamond. "Pop" was catcher for Lafayette during his college course and it is not a strange sight to see him at the home plate catching the returned fungo balls. The Muhlenberg diamond has been put in good shape and is used merely as the practice grounds, since all of the games are to be played on the Tri-State field. This field has been placed at our disposal by the Tri-State management and they are deserving of the greatest credit for the help and assistance that they have given us.

The support that has been given the team has been most encouraging and baseball is now firmly established as the fourth sport at Muhlenberg. It represents a distinct step forward and calls for the undivided support of the entire Student Body. "Get the spirit" has been the touchstone of Muhlenberg's success in the past and its magic touch has brought intercollegiate baseball to Muhlenberg, but this spirit has always emanated by the whole Student Body. Let it be so in baseball, and we will have a team that we are proud of and that will add honor to the name of Muhlenberg.

FRESH—SOPH SCRAPS

BOWL FIGHT

On Wednesday morning, October 1, 1914, in the midst of the usual muddy, rain-soaked field, the Sophs met the Fresh in the annual bowl fight. The Sophs were slightly outnumbered, but they seemed to use the previous year's experience to their own disadvantage. The fight was fiercely contested from beginning to end and, in fact, it became so rough that the Faculty decided to abolish it in the future. So far there have been no accidents, but with the increasing fierceness of the fight it was deemed wise to abolish it before any accidents did occur. The Freshmen chose Blair and Schwenk for their bowlers for the first and second periods, respectively; while Afflerbach and Hepner represented the Orange and the Black. The first half ended 0-0, even the Fresh put up a very plucky scrap. The second half was won by the Sophomores by the very close score of 30-23. There is a big reason to doubt if this would have been the result if the Fresh had not lost their nerve in the second period.

FOOTBALL GAME

The annual football game between the Freshmen and the Sophomores was played on Muhlenberg Field on the afternoon of September 29, 1914. The game was spoiled by the numerous fouls and penalties that were imposed, due to lack of knowledge of the game by the players. Fumbling was the great error of the Sophs, and that is one of the reasons that they were held in check by the Freshmen. Brunner, a dark horse, won the game for 1916 by a spectacular run of 70 yards with a recovered fumble. Whitmer failed to kick the goal. The game was more interesting to watch than the usual games, and the evenly matched teams kept the ball nearly in the center of the field all of the time.

Clarks Of The 48th Class

BANNER SCRAP

The Banner Scrap took place on October 10, 1914, and was more or less of a farce. Due to some misunderstanding only three of the Freshmen appeared and the Sophs had a very easy time in capturing the banner. The Freshmen must be complimented for the valiant fight that they made.

BASKETBALL SERIES

The basketball series was the closest and most interesting since the Fresh-Soph Basketball Series has been inaugurated as a college tradition. Every game was close and exciting and well-played and the full five games had to be played to decide the winner. In the first game the Freshmen gave the Sophomores a severe drubbing and upset all hope on the outcome of the series. Boyer, of the Freshmen, starred and aided greatly in piling up the score of 31-16. In the second game the Sophs came back with a vengeance and took the game with the score of 35-18. Brubaker was playing all of the floor at once and his whirlwind attack frightened the Fresh. The third game was won by the Fresh by the very close score of 24-25. This was the best game of the series, but it became very rough before the end. The Fresh seemed to have overcome their stage fright and played like a unit. The Sophs evened up matters in the next game and won with the score of 18-21. The games in the series now stood two-two and intense interest was displayed in the coming game. The final game was the most interesting of all and was finally won by the Sophs by the score of 13-11. This game was also spoiled a little by too much rough-house work. This gives the Sophomores the championship.

THE GLEE CLUB
OF
MUHLENBERG COLLEGE

SEASON 1913-1914

THE GLEE CLUB SEASON—1913-14

The first meeting of the Glee Club was held shortly after Thanksgiving and the usual fatherly remarks were made to the new men. The motto adopted at this meeting was: "If you see a note, hit it." and the corollary was: "Never fight with the stage hands." The program this year has been a "scream" repertoire of catchy songs, instrumental renditions, and vaudeville sketches. Part II of the program headed "In Lighter Vein," created a sensation of mirth and laughter.

The first concert was given at Tarkasie, and the trip was especially pleasing to the new men. A few receptions, etc., were the order of things after the concert. After our return to college the critics got busy. The supposedly funny and entertaining "War Skit" was so harshly criticised that the army was honorably dismissed without pension. The "spontaneous" wit had not flowed as fast as the "General" expected. The "Auto Skit," however, passes with a little better favor but even this was doomed. At Scranton the miners were most patient not to throw coals during its presentation. It was only at Catasauqua that the act showed signs of decay. "The Smile" was the best part in the act according to the report of several hearesses.

Substituting for these two "vaudeville" sketches a medley of the latest, and some not so late, songs, our second part, "In Lighter Vein," was complete. Marks and Noble filled in as conversationists and songsters, and they were good ones at that.

After the Catasauqua concert, came Asbury Park. Well, here we were so royally entertained and so well fed that the Censor eliminated all of the details. The time was too short to go to Sea Girt and so we went to see Elizabeth, where we gave another of our popular concerts. Next day, being Sunday, we traveled to New York. Here most of us stayed at the Grand Central Hotel. Probably a few went to Sunday-school but the sights of the city tempted too many and the attendance was slight. Monday, we attended the banquet at the "Waldorf-Astoria" and gave a few songs. After this we all paraded up Broadway to "Churchill's" or "Rector's" or some other "Little Cafe" as some one aptly put it.

It was Tuesday, when we came back to college to spend an entire day. On the following day we went to Reading. This was probably the best concert of the entire season, for several reasons. The "Chamber of Commerce" had us sing a few numbers at their banquet at six o'clock. After the concert followed the so-much-heard-of and so-much-talked-of banquet at the Wyomissing Club.

On Friday in a blinding snowstorm we arrived in Lebanon and gave an excellent concert. As usual, the young ladies had a reception for us and some of the men very nearly got lost in the snowstorm. Also, one of the fellows nearly got beat up for mistaking a minister for a cabman. The schedule then called for Columbia, and again there were receptions galore. Lancaster then followed with more receptions and on Saturday we arrived in Melrose Park. We took dinner at the homes of the various inhabitants and gave a concert before a very select audience. Here the club was in a poor condition as several of the men were overfed. Sunday was spent in Philadelphia in a similar manner to the New York Sunday. The audience at the concert was rather slim due to the weather conditions, which did not, however, prevent the different socials and "tango teas" from being held. Some place in the foregoing there is a trip to Bethlehem that must be mentioned. This is the first time that the natives heard our club and they seemed to enjoy it.

To give the best idea of the success of this organization, permit us to quote from a few newspaper write-ups.

Clarla Of The 48th Class

"An excellent concert. A pronounced success from every standpoint. One of the best musical affairs held in this city."

The Tribune-Republican, Scranton, Pa.

"Even the most fastidious and critical could not find fault. The voices blend marvelously. Rounds and rounds of applause given from the audience that packed the large hall." The Reading News, Reading, Pa.

"An excellent program delighted the large audience in Martin Auditorium. The soloists are promising musicians and the chorus singing was splendid."

The New Era, Lancaster, Pa.

"They sing, play, recite, and do their stunts in a manner which brings forth loud applause." Every Evening, Wilmington, Del.

"A nobly rendered concert. An assemblage of well trained singers and soloists." Catasauqua Despatch, Catasauqua, Pa.

"A clean victory scored with the concert in Rajah Temple. Gave unequivocal proof of their title to being one of the best musical organizations ever heard in this city." The Reading Herald, Reading, Pa.

THE CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

It is a satisfaction to report progress, to feel that a mile-stone has been passed. Owing to the fact that two of our members, H. J. and C. L. Fry, represented Muhlenberg at the Student Volunteer Conference, held at Kansas City, Mo., during the holidays, we were enabled to gain a new realization of the reality and bigness of the problems we are facing, and received a new stimulus to our work.

The students raised $125.00 for the work in Japan of Rev. E. T. Horn, who is an alumnus of Muhlenberg, and is keeping in contact with us through the mails, counting on his Alma Mater for her interest and support.

A mission study class of over twenty men has been organized, using as the text-book Eddy's "The New Era in Asia." Unusual interest has been shown, and the discussions have been of practical value.

About fifteen of the men have been throwing their energies into local Sunday-school work, supplying at nearby missions, and making their influence felt in other similar organizations.

Our endeavor to place a ban on the thoughtless habit of swearing has met with hearty co-operation on all sides, and the results are apparent; and there has been a greater interest in the Association's work that has been encouraging.

This year has witnessed a fresh start in this important phase of college life, and our hope is that this new beginning, though it may have been small, may, however, be the starting point of a new activity in the Association's life, and that next year will witness a development of large power and influence.

We cannot be too grateful for the helpful encouragement Dr. Haas has offered, and through the fact that he is putting his shoulder to the wheel he has lent a poise and solidarity to the work which would have been impossible otherwise.

HENRY J. FRY, Leader.

Muhlenberg + College

THE LITERARY SOCIETIES

Within the past few years there has been a growing feeling that Euterpea and Sophronia have not been accomplishing, to any great degree, the purpose for which they were established. Interest has steadily declined; the bulky methods of procedure, compulsory attendance, rival activities, their very age, have all reacted against them. Along with this has been an increasing tendency to transfer "The Muhlenberg" to the control of the Student Body, and this desire has now become so strong that such action was lately taken. This tendency combined with the general lack of interest to weaken the hold of the societies so that they have been temporarily abandoned for a new form of literary society that has been given a successful trial during this last semester.

There are now two literary societies known by the names "Senior-Junior" and "Sophomore-Freshman." Membership and attendance are optional, business is reduced to a minimum, and the one hour that is spent in meeting every other week is spent in work. The programs are varied. At every other meeting, the hour is given up to a debate, followed by a considerable period for general discussion. Alternating with these programs are some of an entirely different type, featuring orations, magazine and book reviews.

The whole movement, it will be seen, is one toward freedom in organization, operation, and work. Whether these new societies will be established permanently remains to be seen. It may be that, with these new principles as a basis, Euterpea and Sophronia will be re-organized. But whatever form the literary societies may take, certain it is that Muhlenberg's literary interests will not be neglected.

THE NEW YORK BANQUET

The greatest gathering of the alumni and friends of Muhlenberg, in the history of the college, took place on the Ninth of February, Nineteen Hundred and Fourteen. The Muhlenberg Banquet was the occasion and the Waldorf-Astoria the place. The good of Muhlenberg was the theme of the evening and enthusiasm on this topic was in abundance. Students and alumni, faculty and friends, all mingled on an equal basis, and each gained by the contact. We came back with a better conception of the greatness of Muhlenberg and the men she has sent forth. Our friends and alumni gained a better idea of the Muhlenberg men of the future. As a result of this, there is sure to be a unification of interest that cannot do otherwise than hasten the day when "Greater Muhlenberg" is a reality and all—students, alumni, faculty, trustees, and friends—bend their efforts towards "Still Greater Muhlenberg."

SUNDAY,

FATAL ACCIDENT OCCURS

JOY-RIDING ENDS IN DEATH

VICIOUS MISCREANTS RUN DOWN COPELY

A sad accident occurred yesterday within the confines of the Muhlenberg Campus when an automobile filled with over-joyous students ran down Mr. Charles Copley, also a student, fatally injuring him. The machine, into which no less than a dozen young men had been jammed, came tearing along 24th Street at a terrific rate, and the chauffeur, Christopher J. Quinn, seared by the ruts in the road, lost all control. The boat shot from the highway on to the campus, where it had the great misfortune of hitting the victim of the accident, who was innocently engaged in the study of a dandelion flower. The accompanying photograph, providentially caught by a bystander at the crucial moment of the stopping of the machine, shows the first attempt at the rescue of the unfortunate by one of the students. The victim was at once re-

GRIM REAPER GOES ON A TEAR

Once again we have had the evils of joy-riding forcibly called to our attention when Mr. Copley, an innocent student, was run down by an automobile full of celebrating students. Mr. Copley is an ardent and enthusiastic student of botany and was carefully observing the actions of the dandelion flower in its native lair when he was disturbed by the machine. This conclusively shows that too great zeal in any cause is likely to be harmful to that cause, just as the great dramatist, Ibsen, says.

Mr. Copley at first regarded the whole affair as a joke and not until he learned that he had been run down by some giddily celebrating students did his ire rise. This shows the great value of a good nature which can stand its bumps and knocks and laugh at them. It also shows that anger in a righteous cause is justifiable.

GIFT SENT TO TELAGOOS

VALUABLE OFFERING

One of the most talked of events at the University this week is the appointment of two Muhlenberg men by the National W. C. T. U. as missionaries to the Telagoos. Both stand high in their studies and are well qualified to perform this noble work. They speak Irish, Hottentot and Telagoos fluently.

The Telagoos are a very low race of people, some of them being as low as four feet. They live principally on food as all savages do. It is with the intention of reforming these evils that our noble brethren are being sent to these benighted people.

GRAND ARMY EVENT VERY

The Grand Army of the Muhlenberg College Club was yesterday afternoon disbanded with suitable ceremonies. This valiant body made but a single brave effort in behalf of their country, and that in vain, yet all honor is due them for their noble stand. General Reisner at Perkasie led out his army in a supreme effort to stave off an hostile mob and avert disaster from the heads of his friends, tried and true. He met the attack of the ruffians who threw over-ripe fruit and eggs with consummate courage and strategy. Though finally compelled to retreat he nevertheless restrained the brutal, bloodthirsty mob until his civilian countrymen had retreated to a place of safety. Then, and only then, did he withdraw from the scene of the conflict. For this wonderful defence the entire army was yesterday granted honorable discharge without pension—the necessity for a standing army having, since the Battle of Perkasie, been obviated.

ECCENTRIC SPARROWS DISCOVERED

BIRDS VERY INTELLECTUAL

Lima, Ohio.—This is the city where all sorts of things come from. Yesterday there were discovered in the railroad yards, a queer kind of sparrows. These birds were pieking up the corn that fell from the cars, and laying it on the tracks. We sent out our Sporting Editor to observe more closely this new brand of sparrows. He informed us that the corn is pretty large and unswallowable for a little sparrow, but that the birds take the whole grain, place it on the track, so the cars can run over it and grind it to meal, then the sparrows eat the corn easily. Thusly the sparrows managed to get a good meal.

IMPRESSIVE

The granting of the discharge was preceded by a public review in full dress uniform, which was witnessed by thousands of grateful people. General Reisner, on his noble steed, led the wounded heroes before the eyes of the admiring populace. The sight brought tears to the eyes of many and many a patriot.

In an interview granted our reporter, General Reisner stated that he hoped to build up a new army to fight in an even better cause. Corporal Blair is so thankful for getting out of service, noble as his mission was, that he expects to loaf a few years to make up for his experiences. Army Day itself says that he will go back to the farm and mother now that he has procured his release, and will cultivate potatoes for the rest of his natural life. The parting of the army from its beloved and respected general was very pathetic and heart-touching. The general was quite overcome by emotion, and quoted Nathan Hale's famous remark, "I regret that I have but one life to give for my country."

STUDENT COMMITS SUICIDE

S. C. ARECROW HANGS HIMSELF

DESPONDENT OVER STUDIES

Another sad cause must be added to the list of casualties which has lately grown so large in our midst. This time the victim was Mr. S. C. Areerow, of Liverpool, England. Mr. Areerow committed suicide early this morning by hanging himself with a belt. His act is ascribed to despondency over repeated failures in Logie.

When Mr. J. M. Freed, the room-mate of the deceased, returned from breakfast this morning, he was horrified to see, as he entered the room, the body of his chum swinging by a belt around his neck in the doorway of his bed-room. Mr.

LOGIC FAILURES WEAKEN HIS MIND

Once again the evil effects of over-work and of strict application to Logie became apparent when, this morning at 7:14 o'clock, Mr. S. C. Areerow committed suicide by hanging. The evidence all points to the incontrovertible fact that the mind of the deceased was deranged by his frantic efforts to keep all his work up to the mark in every department, an impossible achievement, if the tales of the other students concerning assignments are to be believed. Also his endeavors to reduce the mysteries of Logie to a common-sense system were largely responsible for his mental breakdown and con-

RIFLES HOLD MONTHLY SHOOT

The Muhlenberg "Rifles" yesterday held their monthly shoot at the rifle-range just north of Cetronia, Pa. Every member of the club was present, and the occasion was a very enjoyable one in every respect. A feature of the shoot was the fact that no one was seriously injured. Ziemer received a slight dose of spread-shot, but the damage is only temporary. This has been one of the least serious shoots the club has held in a long time.

The immediate occasion for the outing was a test as to the respective prowess of two teams, composed respectively of Ziemer and Quinn, and Miller and Parker. The latter team finally won the meet with the exceptionally high score of two bulls-eyes out of a hundred shots. Ziemer and Quinn scored only half as many, one bulls-eye, but they made a very creditable showing nevertheless. Ziemer holds that he and Quinn are both far-sighted and that the targets were placed too close to them, which prevented them from doing their best. Had the range been greater he is confident that they would have defeated the winning team.

HAIRCUT OBTAINED

The entire college was this afternoon startled and pleasantly surprised to see the form of Levi Yiengst loom up on the horizon minus a large part of the hair which usually accompanies him. All were at first somewhat frightened at this phenomenon. Finally, the bolder men got up courage enough to congratulate him, and ask him whose birthday he was celebrating. When it appeared that he had had himself sheared merely for the pleasure of the thing, and from a sense of duty to his companions, the entire student body went into general rejoicing. Levi himself said that he had just discovered how delightful it was to have short hair, and that from now on he expected to remain closely cropped to the end of his days. Everybody hopes for the successful carrying out of these, Levi's own desires.

Ed. H. Stolzenbach, also a member, intended to give an exhibition of fine shooting with a .44 calibre horse-pistol. Some jealous outsider, probably a rival, tampered with his gun, however, and so effectually that the hammer was missing. In the absence of this important part of the mechanism, Mr. Stolzenbach was compelled by force of circumstances to postpone the exhibition. It will be given in the near future, however, he declares, and he invites the public to attend. No collection will be lifted.

AUTOMOBILE DISAPPEARS

Another mysterious event occurred last night when the automobile, the property of one Gus Merkle, disappeared from the spot where it had been tied. During the course of a celebration in the Commons it seems Merkle left his machine outside, confident that it would not run away. He was doomed to disappointment, however, for when he came out his car had disappeared. Gus, in spite of the presence of some ladies, spent a few valuable moments in making some pertinent and pointed remarks as to the ancestry, character, and future destiny of the malefactors who had engineered the theft. He then instituted a careful search of the premises and finally discovered his faithful Cadillac hiding behind the coal-yard adjoining the Laboratory. Thankfulness at its recovery smoothed away all traces of his ire, and he rode home in perfect serenity of spirit.

It appears as if Gus had placed a little too much faith in his car because it was a Cadillac, believing either that it would not be tempted to run away or that no one would want it. Accordingly when his ideals were thus rudely shattered he became slightly peeved. His language, while low and soft, was still quite expressive and to the point. Gus threatened the evil-doers with the direst punishment were his car not found and returned anon. The relief both to him and to those nearby must have been tremendous when the machine was located undamaged.

Questioned as to the probable motive for the strange theft, Mr. Merkle made a few straightforward remarks to the general effect that the deed had been committed by "some poor boobs who thought they were funny," and whose ears were not up to the Cadillac standard. This seems a strange motive for such a tragedy but in the absence of a better explanation it has been accepted. Mr. Merkle says that in the future he will remove the engine before he leaves the machine out in the cold, and thus remedy the difficulty.

MISCREANTS RUN DOWN COPLEY

moved to the Allentown Hospital where his injuries were pronounced fatal. The entire party has been detained by the Police of Allentown.

When questioned by the reporters, the students had little to say. They merely vouchsafed that they had been celebrating the successful passage of an examination too freely and had taken the ride in continuation of the celebration. They lay the whole blame on the driver who, they say, lost his nerve at the important moment while they were threading the devious defiles of 25th Street. They admit that, owing to the great weight of the party, it might have been an exceedingly difficult thing to guide the machine. All are deeply regretful over the accident.

It seems that Mr. Copley himself, who is a devoted student of botany, was carefully examining a dandelion flower in its own environment. So absorbed was he in his interesting observations that he did not hear the wild shouts of the carousers nor the "honks" of the horn until it was too late. Then he endeavored to escape the engine of death bearing down on him, but he was hit before he could move from the spot. He at first believed it was a joke, thinking his fellow-students wished to find out whether he was physically strong enough to buck an automobile. On learning that he was the victim of an accident this expression changed and he became decidedly angry. He accepted his fate, as foetold by the doctor, very stoically.

The driver, C. J. Quinn, has very little to say. He claims that a telegraph pole jumped out into the middle of the road and scared him into driving on the campus. Such an unnatural occurrence unnerved him, he says. It is generally believed that the celebration had jammed Quinn's gear slightly, so that it is hardly to be wondered at if the machine failed to follow the straight and narrow path. Quinn also says that Copley should not have been studying flowers so close to a dangerous road, thus partly exculpating himself. The police are jubilant over such a large and entirely unexpected haul.

STUDENTS VISIT NEW YORK CITY

A number of our fellow-students last week honored the ancient and historic site of New York City by their presence there for the space of several days. Afflicted with a desire to see the high buildings, they decided to risk their lives in that metropolis of sin. Accordingly, under the tender care of Prof. Bailey, who kindly consented to chaperone them, they ventured forth and after a few days stay came home nearly broke. The accompanying photograph shows them in the course of the fulfillment of the object of their tour.

It is especially noteworthy to mark that they were fleeced only very slightly. Outside of paying nearly double the real price of their theater-tickets, they escaped the wiles of the cunning sharper quite well.

The consensus of opinion of the entire group was that the trip was well worth the spondulix laid out upon it. Not only was their craving for a sight of the big buildings gratified, but they all agree that they learned how to take better care of themselves. They expect to publish a book in the near future "How to Avoid Being Fleeced in a Big City" which will contain accurate information on that subject and which will undoubtedly have immense popularity and tremendous sales.

RUMORS OF WAR

As we are about to go to press a rumor reaches us that war is about to be declared in that immediate section of our country comprising the basement of the Administration Building. The aggressive forces have already laid in a supply of ammunition composed of seven rubbers, three over-ripe oranges, one juicy banana-skin, and four water-bags. The defensive force up to the present time has merely retired beyond the range of fire, and up to date no serious consequences have resulted.

REISNER HOLDS PINK TEA

The social eclat and "Four Hundred" of Allentown yesterday congregated in the room of Mr. Walter Lewis Reisner, also "Jew" and "Windy," to participate in a charming pink tea given by that gentleman. Napkins were served and the gentlemen were requested not to put cigarette ashes on the floor, in order that the customary cleanliness of the room might be preserved. The young feed which was served co-incident with the tea was served in the room of one Norbert Kauffman, who is slightly less particular as to the absolute cleanliness of his apartments or the exact order of chairs and tables. It must be confessed that the "eats" were rather meagre, but what could be expected at a pink tea given by "Jew" Reisner? This, moreover, in no wise detracted from the enjoyability of the occasion, for the event was declared by all a real success.

After the tea was over Mr. Reisner in the kindness of his heart asked a number of his fellow-students to come in and eat the remains of the feast. The remains were even more meagre than the feast, but they were eaten with as much gusto, if with less filling capacity, as a turkey dinner. All these guests were unanimous in their praise of Mr. Reisner's foresight in having the mess resulting from the affair left in Kauffman's room and not his own. It is admitted by all that this showed remarkable generalship, and was largely responsible for the immense success of the occasion.

MONSTROUS PARADE

MOTLEY ARRAY SEEN ON HAMILTON STREET

Allentown was yesterday deeply stirred to behold a motley array of Freshmen parade down Hamilton Street clad in snow-white nightshirts. On inquiry being made it was found that the offenders had failed to join in a certain student parade of some time ago, in punishment for which they were made to march down the main street of town at noon yesterday, until stopped by an indignant old lady.

At a few minutes before one the blushing Freshmen were first seen wending their way down Hamilton Street clad in the aforementioned nightshirts. They all carried signs giving their excuses for failure to appear in the previous student function. One particularly violent Fresh was riding in a wheelbarrow, which was pushed by one of his own class-mates. The parade solemnly marched to Sixth and Hamilton, gravely turned around, and started out again.

At this stage of the game the "deus ex machina" enters the plot—or rather "dea," now that we come to think of it. Indignation, personified in the person of a righteously wrathful old lady, made violent complaint to Law, impersonated by a corpulent policeman, ordering the prank to be halted. Law, compelled to do its duty, therefore nobly intervened and loosed the wheelbarrow-riding Fresh from bondage, and in short broke up the parade. Meanwhile, Indignation, still personified, made various sarcastic and caustic remarks about students. The general intent of these remarks was that "students acted like cattle, as if they had no brains, that they carried on like wild, etc., etc," with more to the same general effect. It is very doubtful as to whether or not this speech had the desired effect on its objects, but it is to be hoped that so excellent an address was not made in vain.

Such reports as can be obtained are all very favorable to the parade in regard to its beauty, size, and general attractiveness. It is to be pitied that exhibitions of this nature do not occur more frequently to gladden the eyes of this patient city. At the same time, it is worthy of comment that there still exist in our town people of sufficiently humane temperament and moral courage to stop such pranks when necessity arises—and even when it doesn't.

The machine was driven by one Christopher J. Quinn, who was quite hilarious over his feat. He says that this was the first time he has had the good fortune to really hit anybody, and he claims that in this affair botany has vindicated itself as being of some use in keeping a target still enough for him to hit.

The party was somewhat sobered by the accident, but they refused to believe that a mere automobile had been capable of doing permanent injury to Copley, and they do not hesitate to call the doctors prevaricators who have pronounced the injuries fatal. They all were escorted by the police to Fourth and Linden with no show of violence and they make no bones of their expectation of getting out without any legal troubles. They still see only the funny side of the accident which proves that a sense of humor is often a blessing. They have already promised to take the police with them on the occasion of their next celebration, and it is rumored that the invitation has been accepted.

WEATHER FORECAST

"Whether it rains or whether it snows,
We must have weather, whether or no."

For Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, and Maryland, fair tonight and much warmer, followed by snow-storms in some sections. Tomorrow cloudy and melancholy, with high winds bringing drizzle and in some sections hail, closely followed by variable weather. Brisk northeast to southwest winds all day interspersed with heavy thunderstorms, followed by moderate temperature. A cold or hot wave, may be expected shortly—which one the Weather Bureau has not yet been able to determine, but one is coming.

REAL REFORM

All these yappings about simplified spelling make us tired. What we need is real simplified tenses in the English language. As a starter we suggest the following modifications:

Present	Past	Perfect
run	ran	beat it
sing	sang	sank
throw	threw	heaved
fly	flue	fell
walk	walked	limped

The English language is changing constantly; why not put this great idea into action at once?

To REMOVE THE SNOW

We were surprised that during the past winter many students were unable to get out to college owing to the depth of the snow on the campus. We suggest that snow could be removed in any simple way such as we here present.

Why not station a sufficient force of students on the campus when the snow begins to fall. Let each man be provided with a hot tin-cup in which to catch each flake as it falls. When the cup is full of melted snow the fellow can drink it quickly and resume his job. By employing our baseball players not a flake of snow would reach the ground. Simple.

Another excellent plan would be to hire an army of trap-shooters and let them shoot the flakes to pieces as they fall. Simple, but the ammunition should be furnished free.

If these plans can not be put into action, and snow does get on the campus it could be removed thusly: Dig the campus from under the snow and when it falls into the hole thus made replace the campus on top of it.

We solemnly submit these plans to the snow-cleaning department.

OUR POLICY

We editors know our business. Today we got a lot of news. When we don't have so much we print the paper dim so that the people can hardly make out the printing and it takes them so long to read it that they think they have read quite a lot.

BIG FIRE SALE

The truth of the old proverb, "It's an ill wind that blows no one good" was again forced fully illustrated in the course of the past week. Fire Sale and hence no bargains. As it was, many students attended and got some bargains—also some things that were not bargains. They all went early to avoid the rush but found that the rush had come early for the same reason. They nevertheless managed to fight their way to the counters and scare the clerks into giving them the desired articles.

Up to date the heaviest investor and best-pleased patron has been one William A. Freihofer. This gentleman secured the beautiful but rather startling and talkative combination of pink underwear, green socks, and a purple tie, all below cost. He claims these purchases were all bargains and heartily endorses the sale, advising everybody to follow his example.

Freed immediately shouted for help, after first taking the above photograph of the suicide. The body was still warm and frantic efforts were made to resuscitate him, but in vain. The doctor arrived within an hour but pronounced him already dead. The deceased leaves no relatives.

Mr. Freed and other friends of the dead man were closely questioned as to possible motives for his rash act. It seems that Mr. Arcrow had been working early and late at a tremendous pace for the past few weeks in an effort to keep up with all his studies, and it is believed that over-work weakened his brain. In addition, he had just failed in a Logic examination, owing to which he was very despondent. He was even heard several days ago to remark something about "hanging," but whether he referred to himself or the Logie, can never be known.

As far as can be learned the young man had nothing beyond his studies to trouble him. It has been suggested that his melancholy, noticeable for some time past, might have been occasioned by the fact that he was rooming with Freed, who is an habitual solitaire-fieid, which may easily have been enough to make him morbid and unsettle his mind. Also judging from the amount of work he was making frenzied efforts to accomplish, it can safely be inferred that over-work was also a partial cause of his despondency.

The deceased was very secretive and nothing is known of him beyond that he came from Liverpool. He made few friends here and apparently received no letters from friends elsewhere. Practically nothing is known of his ancestry or his native home. The accompanying illustrations show him as he ordinarily appeared when at work, and as he looked after committing the fatal act.

Mr. Freed has only one comment to make on the whole matter—he is glad that his roommate hanged himself and did not cut his throat and mess up the room. Mr. Freed has kindly consented to take care of the burial arrangements for the deceased.

FUTURIST POETRY

Who knows the lilt of dark, insensate things
That shimmer through the sunken sea
Of strife?

Whence comes the chamfered call of fantors in
The hearkened pulse of crass, iniquinate lull
Of those that were and are and yet are not?
And where yawns the grave protuberant athwart
The gay abyss where vim the epic searchers
Stifle? Come then the recking eroon of tiers
On tiers, and threshing yelps of woe that laughs
But knows no morn? What then if sounds
The rift unto the azure slope and lowly trend of bright

Disalceated dawn? Sifts the shrill and soundless beams
Of hope unto the recking smiles agone?
Who knows? Who knows?

W. E. HEUTSCH

Great fleas have little fleas
Upon their backs to bite them,
And little fleas have lesser fleas,
And so, ad infinitum.
And the great fleas themselves in turn
Have greater fleas to go on,
While these again have greater still,
And greater still and so on.

CYNIC WERNER

I love to hang to a branch and swing,
And watch the bull frogs leap and spring.
And at even time I joy to fling
Me down with a thud on the old bed-spring.

BOOB BAGGER

"Man wants but little here below"
The poet oft has sung.
A little tobacco, booze and dough
For him spells life's sweet song.
And when the Reaper Grim doth call
Him to his heavenly home,
He's willing that his tombstone shall
Put an end to this little poem.

HONEST ABE DUBBS

HEALTH AND BEAUTY HINTS

EDITOR, "COKE" LOCH

In picking up a red hot poker be sure to use some other person's hand.

Never stub your toe on a rattle-snake.

Never dispute the right of way with a railway train.

Never hug a freshly painted post.

Never bite a bull terrier.

If you catch a cold, shake it.

If your stove troubles you with smoke close all the doors and windows and live on the front porch. Thus you will avoid getting red eyes.

Never tell a conductor your face is your fortune; he might punch it.

Use tango tea for rheumatism, it's much better than sage tea.

If your nose becomes red from the cold air stay out another hour and it will become blue.

If your woolen underwear tickles the skin wear it outside the overcoat.

Don't smile too big, you might crack the enamel.

To prevent getting indigestion from mince pie feed it to the dog.

Yes, you may eat tomatoes raw but cobblestones must be cooked.

Never swipe a fur overcoat if it has more than 40 chest measurement.

SLIGHT CONFLAGRATION

Owing to the over-heated condition of the atmosphere on the third floor of the Administration Building, and to Billy Bryan's enthusiastic efforts to impart speed to the ancient elevator, a slight conflagration resulted in the elevator-shaft. A slight but judicious application of extinguishing remedies quickly checked the

LOGIC FAILURES WEAKENS MIND

As far as the deed itself is concerned, little or nothing is known. J. M. Freed, the room-mate of the dead man, by an unprecedented summoning up of courage, arose early enough to go to the Commons for breakfast. On his return he found his chum hanging in the doorway making his last kicks. Being a curious specimen of humanity, Freed first took a picture of the scene for his scrap-book and then summoned help, which, however, proved quite useless. The whole affair shows the deplorable evils resulting from the reckless abandonment of a good habit, for had Freed not gone to breakfast his room-mate would never have committed his rash act, and a life would have been saved.

The deceased was a solitary person, desiring few friendships. He was quite content to exist by the side of his solitude-seeking, solitaire-playing room-mate. Thus his premature demise shows the evils of a morbid, solitary life, and his chum should take heed lest he be driven to the same action. Of course, Freed is hardly likely to bring on any attack of self-slaughter by over-work, and there is therefore much hope for him. For Mr. Arcrow, however, nothing remains but the shouting, which will take place at the interment next Friday.

combustion. No permanent or serious injury was done to the building or the car. Owing to the prompt action of the chauffeur the fire department's services were able to be dispensed with and the structure was thus saved. The loss is entirely covered by assurance.

SAYINGS OF A "LOLLYGOGGER"

If girls were to choose their husbands as carefully as they choose their hats the woods would be filled with bachelors.

The high cost of living wasn't so high in the days when a girl would rather use soap than cold cream.

Any old time you see a man putting on a girl's rubbers for her you can bet that they are not married.

The old fashioned girl whose dress used to be full of pins now has a daughter who leaves everything unfastened.

A girl of the period looks more like an exclamation point.

What has become of the old-fashioned girl who used to marry Nat Goodwin?

Marriage is a lottery and the prizes men draw are talking machines.

It doesn't matter how often he has done it, it always makes a girl mad to imagine that a fellow believes he can kiss her when he wants to.

Woman has it all over man. She never looks warm in Summer and she never looks cold in Winter.

It isn't always modesty that makes a girl wear high-necked dresses; it may be a mole.

Almost every day a man sees the prettiest girl he ever saw in his life.

It is always the woman who has raised a poodle and a canary and two goldfish who knows all about the proper way to raise children.

A girl's idea of a quitter is the young man who will leave her side and go home at ten o'clock, just because her father says he can't stay any later.

The old fashioned woman who used to have a framed crocheted "What is Home Without a Mother" in her dining room now has a daughter who has "Ish Ka Bibble" mottoes all over the house.

A man who has hives, eczema, and a dollar watch isn't kept any busier than a woman who marries a man to reform him.

When a man gets through sowing his wild oats he often reaps a grass widow.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

DEAR EDITOR: Why does a crow caw or doesn't it?—DUNDORE

(Seems to us a crow ought to crow; a rooster roosts, ain't it?—Ed.)

TO THE EDITOR: I have often heard of pink tea; who colors it and why?—REISNER

(There ain't no such thing, was it?—Ed.)

DEAR EDITOR: Last night I dreamt I was in an air-ship and we ran into a cod-fish which was swimming without lights. This knocked all the strawberries off the Christmas tree, and precipitated a strike of the cold-slaw cutters. This broke the laws of gravity leaving me with plenty of talcum powder but no collar buttons. This was very ashatootic, but Swenson wouldn't agree to put back the pickles. Kindly interpret this dream for me—“PUD” DAY

(To us it means you should merely harness the holdfish to the boat without making a hole for them in the water. This would keep the fat man walking on the ice from slipping on the mackerel and spilling the Peruna the horse-doctor gave to the dog. Should the blond, baby-faced beauty still insist on eating holes in the cheese, you should worry.—Ed.)

BED OUTRAGE

STRANGE DISAPPEARANCE

A fourth bed outrage was perpetrated last night when the beds of Messrs. Afflerbach and Brubaker mysteriously disappeared from their accustomed abodes in the dormitories. They were not located until next morning, the accompanying photographs showing the owners returning with them.

Last night Mr. Afflerbach and Mr. Brubaker went down town to indulge in a little “lollygoggin.” They returned of course at a quite late hour, and discovered to their surprise and wrath that their much-needed bed had forsaken them in their hour of need. Utterly unable to find them they finally laid their weary bodies on the window-seat for the night. Next morning they instituted a careful search of the premises for the remains of the beds and after a long hunt they finally ran their furniture to ground, locating it in a nearby grove.

Both the unfortunate young gentlemen claim that the object of this strange theft was revenge for certain entirely innocent doings of their own. The same kind of outrages have been occurring steadily in the past and both the men are roused and determined to run down the offenders and punish them. These mysterious movements of the furniture have occasioned a great deal of thought and cogitation and the inevitable result must be the capture of the culprits. These depredations have taken place so frequently that at last concerted action is about to be taken in an effort to apprehend the criminals.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

Editor, A. S. SWENSON

DEAR SWENSON: I am twenty-three, good-looking and well built, and was going to marry a girl of the same age. We had a quarrel and fell out, and now I am at different times going with four or five of her friends, who are all also able to love me. But I can't stop thinking of the first girl, with whom I have again fallen in love. She told someone, who told someone else, who told me, she still cared a great deal for me. What shall I do?—WORRIED LEWIS

(Love is often shipwrecked, and this girl in particular, I think, thinks “I am not to blame.” Now you should show you are willing to give in and say you are wrong. Then govern your future actions by the manner in which she takes your confession. If you would send me their photographs, I could better tell you which would be the most suitable wife to choose. It is only right that you should ask me for aid in these matters, since I have met with all such problems in the great school of experience called Life.—Ed.)

DEAR EDITOR: I am twenty, deeply in love with a young lady eight years my senior. I cannot marry yet for four years, because I am too young and my position does not bring me enough income at present. I take great pleasure in writing to one who I know can sympathize deeply with me. Kindly tell me what I can tell this girl, and also is she too old for me?—“SCHMEIL”

I do not want to break that girl's heart, so you better marry her. Your salary will no doubt double after the publication of your book.—Ed.)

The Morpheum

Excellent bill this week. Featuring Reisner, Blair, and Day in a comedy skit, entitled

“Our Army in Action”

The Delyric

All this week.

The M. C. D. A. Stock Company, in

“The House Next Door”

THEATER NOTES

THE "MORPHEUM"

The bill in the "Morpheum" this week is exceptional. For high-class vaudeville it can not be surpassed. Every minute contains a laugh, if not at the jokes, at the comedians themselves. Noble and Marx present a delightful little act filled with original song and patter that is funny enough to make a marble angel on a tombstone double up in hysterics. Their sparkling wit, accompanied by excellent songs, the very latest, rendered by good voices, in the best possible manner, is making a tremendous hit.

Harold Laury, famous all over the United States, presents a monologue in which he appears as a chauffeur disgusted with an obstreperous machine. His almost humor has everywhere been a howling success. The grease-paint he uses on his face to represent dirt gives him a very life-like appearance and adds much to the enjoyment of the piece.

The big feature of the bill is a little skit entitled "Our Army in Action," in which are presented three foot-light favorites, Reisner, Day, and Blair. This head-liner is certainly a top-notch production. In addition to their remarkably funny act, a great deal more humor is introduced by the use of what Mr. Reisner calls "spontaneous wit." This calls forth all the latent ability of these actrices and the result is an excruciatingly funny sketch. After leaving town this act is scheduled for a two-weeks stand before King George V.

THE "DELYRIC"

The M. C. D. A. Stock Company at the "Delyric" is this week presenting a pleasing farce called "The House Next Door." The play is filled with humorous situations and is liberally sprinkled with wit. The eccentricities of Sir Hugh Gotsgold furnish an inexhaustible source of amusement, and the real nobility of Sir Jacob Isaacson adds the necessary note of seriousness to the play. The actors, as in the past, are taking their respective parts with wonderful success. Their innate ability would assure any play success, and such an excellent one in particular. Indeed, on the occasion of every performance so far it has taken the house by storm, and it is certainly worth the investment of one's loose change to be seen.

FRESH CULLS DANDELIONS

A curious yet amusing event occurred yesterday afternoon, when a solitary Freshman spent the entire p. m. filling a suitcase with dandelion flowers. Shortly after dinner the Freshman appeared on the rear campus, accompanied by a few Sophs with a dress suitcase. The latter article was forthwith turned over to the Freshman and he was requested to pick all the dandelion blossoms in his immediate vicinity until he should fill the suitcase. Not being of exactly a combative temperament the Freshman complied and picked industriously for practically the whole afternoon.

Sometime before supper the results of his industry became apparent, when the suitcase had become so full as to require pressure to close it. The Freshman was then rewarded by being allowed to stop on the condition that in the future he would be less fresh. The treatment seems to have been quite satisfactory in subduing the superfluity of animal spirits in the young man. It is generally conceded that the sun must have boiled away his freshness.

The dandelion flowers themselves, we are told, were kept by the Sophs, who will have dandelion wine made from them to be used at their next banquet when they will regale themselves with the fruit of this labor. The amount of flowers picked should certainly insure plenty of wine at all events.

MOTOR CLUB FORMED

The 1915 Motor Club was yesterday organized and a constitution and by-laws adopted. After this, officers were elected for the ensuing year, the elections resulting in Grand Chauffeur, Freihofer, Chief Crank, Miller, and Smell, Laury. It was decided at the same time that an attempt be made to have the picture of the club taken. It has since been informally given out that entrance qualifications are limited to a smell of gasoline—men having their suits dry-cleaned being ineligible. The members are very optimistic as to the success of their organization.

CETRONIA NEWS

REPORTED BY UNCLE ENOCH

When talking to sum city gals Saterday, Zac Kauffman smoked rite intew his ten-cent seegar rapper what he hez been usin on Zeemer's threefers all winter.

Gosh all hemlock, one of the funnyist things seen at the oyster supper wuz Levi Yiengst trying tew feed his best gal soup with his left hand, his toher one bein hurt. Her mouth seemed to be always at the place where it wasn't when the spoon started fer it.

At this same social, Rube Miller's paper napkin slipt off his knee, and in reachin down to git it he put his rite ear into his bilin hot oyster soup. He give a jump and hit the elbow of Hick Stolzenbach, who wuz eatin a stock of celery. I guess Hick would hev choked to death if Rube hedn't seen the fringe stickin out and saved Hick.

Hen Snyder, who had the leadin and sad part in our home talent play Tuesday, done it so life-like that he made himself feel so bad he couldn't go on, and the play wuz postponed till next Wednesday nite.

Owing to the floods we hed no train service in this vicinity fer two or three days, and Huetsch, who send poems to the magazines, didn't get any verses for three days and he thought he had landed at last. Communication restored they all came back in one flock. Never mind, Hnesch, better luck next time, say we.

There's a way if there's a will. Sunday two keys on the church organ giv out and Hi Zemmer wuz hired to cum with his cornet and play them notes when they cum in the music.

At the oyster supper, mentioned afore, sum thoughtless person ate the oyster and brought things to a standstill till another one could be procured from T. Orr Perkin's grocery.

Old man Hemsath, who hez jist cum from New York City, sez its the darnest place tew spend money he ever seen; that if a feller breaks a half dollar the hull thing is gone in a cupple of days.

Fer sum time the boarders hev bin complainin erbout the cornmeal things bein so hard tew chew. It hez just been learned what wuz the trubble; sawdust hez been mixed with it. Flinn A. B. Seidel sez it is all rite as the advertisin reads: "Fine Board $4."

Gus Merkle stopt at a huttel in New York, when he wuz there last Monday nite, and after he got undrest he thot he would go down the fire-escape so's he would know how if fire broke out. When Gus stept off the thing, it snapped up and he found himself in a blind alley with nuthin on but his nite shirt. He began tew yell, wuz arrested and hed to go tew jail, and to save his life, he couldn't tell the name of the huttel. The next day he was straitened out.

Jew Reisner lost his job in Cohen's Clothing store because he got so he couldn't talk convincin tew the customers. He got rumatism in his arms.

Bill Laury sez he can't take a bit of comfort eatin at the Grand Central Huttel because the fringe on the napkins tickles his neck when he tucks them in his collar. He sez that at every swaller he feels like kickin a leg off the table.

NEW SHOT-PUT RECORD

Last night a new record for the shot-put was established. The shot was thrown with such tremendous violence that (striking a wall) it broke in half. A. H. Skean was the man who made this unprecedentend heave. It was only a practice put, however, preliminary to the contest, and so is unofficial and not recognized. Whether the distance was greater than the shot has ever been put before we do not know, but we believe that any man who can heave it with such violence as to break it has certainly established a better record than that of any man who has merely thrown it some distance. We accordingly hail him as the new holder of the record until someone shall appear who is able to smash it into three pieces.

FIRST HONOR MAN

BUILDS SMOKE STACK

The most intellectual and athletic smoke stack in the world is the new addition to the stack of the Muhlenberg Power House. When the students returned in the fall they noticed that an addition had been placed on the towering stack of the power house. Investigation proved that this was a monument erected by "Bill" Katz and "Davie" Bucks to perpetuate their fame. Katz graduated from Muhlenberg in 1913 with first honor while Bucks is the holder of the two mile record at Muhlenberg. The results of the investigation also showed that the endurance that Bucks gained in the two mile races helped him a great deal in keeping "Lightening" Katz supplied with bricks and mortar. We accordingly hail this as the most intellectual and athletic smoke stack in the country until we find one where the mortar was mixed by the Professor of Chemistry, who must have a Ph. D., and where the bricks were thrown to the top of the stack by the Holder of the World's Shot Put Record.

18. First consignment of "greens" sent to the Commons. College opens. A skirt in chapel—or rather—a dress. Mr. Fasig's Birthday.
19. Freshmen get their first lesson in rubbing down men. Fry holds cheer practice with the Freshies. Loser loses here. Moehling decorates his room with "September Morn."
20. "The Chorus Lady" entertains the more venturesome Freshies. "Jew" Reisner hieks his books at Leary's. Frank Potts, former student and athlete, visits his Alma Mater.
21. Home-sick Freshies all write to their mothers after faithfully attending church. Chicken for dinner. "Steve" introduces Atlantic City servicee at the Commons. Dr. Bauman's Birthday.
22. Madame Polaire, Lady Constanee Stuart-Richardson and Miss Gertrude Hoffman show us a bit of true art. We see a lot of royalty. Gebert and Cook debate on "What is Art?"
23. Children's Day at the Fair and the Freshies all attend. New men take advantage of book bargains, $.60 books, second-hand, reduced to $.85.
24. More Fair. An aeroplane flies over serimpage and the bird man observes closely. Bueks and five Sophs go on his trail. The persistent rumor spreads that he is a Lafayette man who is out scouting our plays.
25. Dr. Wackernagle's birthday. Cheer for him in Chapel. The Doctor replies in German. Grand eelebration. Seven students spend the afternoon in the Fair "coop" after rushing the gate. Ziemer speaks on martyrdom.
26. "Filly Delphy" Freihofer celebrates his birthday by eating at Phil's. Brubecker calls on the Student Council to air his views on the Freshmen.
27. Everybody that is somebody boards a special for Easton. We tie Lafayette, 7-7. Miller shows us the sights. Sehleeter treats his friend to a plate of Abel's and is fussed about the cheeks.
28. Chicken for dinner. Chicken for supper! Sunday papers in demand. Our Sunday-school teachers chew cough drops and talk to their classes through a megaphone.

Muhlenberg + College

29. Chicken soup. M. C. A. holds a smoker and a reception for the new men. The Muhlenberg Orchestra appears. Although without any practice, under the leadership of Reisner, they produce a semblance of harmony. Sophs beat the Fresh in football. Prof. Bossard has a birthday.
30. Sophs worried, Fresh anxious over the coming Bowl Fight. Prof. Simpson supervises the cleaning of the library with a vacuum cleaner. Suggestion is made that he be appointed Chairman of the Cleaning Committee.

OCTOBER

1. CIARLA Board holds its first meeting. Enthusiasm, rampant; Keiter, couchant; business managers, sinister. Sophs win the bowl fight, 30-23. Ziemer is elected by the anti-gang element to make League Hall a model section. Nenow, the Socialist, declares the election illegal.
2. Many stiff necks; much black and blue anatomy. Ben Hubbard advises the Coach. Rumor goes that the price of beer has gone up.
3. Muhlenberg Chapter of the Night Tempters holds a special meeting to consider the rise in the price of beer. After some discussion it is found that this cannot be so as beer always goes down or comes up. Matter settled.
4. We beat New York University, 54-0. All of the scrubs play and show up well. Paga tirzukonuta. (Indian for revenge.) Students are shocked by the immensity of the slaughter.
5. Chicken again! This is a hen of a meal. Moehling advises the Fresh to meet the Allentown girls in Sunday-school instead of on Hamilton Street. Many converts.
6. Rumor of game with Penn. Rattle brains try and dope out the score. Hot air in abundance. Student Council meets. Horrible scandal. Finek says "hell" in the Dorms.
7. Rumor of Penn game still persists. Ziemer bets that we score. We receive a check from home, buy a "Labor Herald," get a shoe shine, eat a chocolate-nut sundae, visit the Pergola, and take the street car out to school. There's no stopping us when we go on a tear, b'gosh.
8. Ziemer bets that we beat Penn. Nenow is elected Baseball Manager. Hurray for the Anarchists. Sophronia and Euterpea both hold meetings for a change. Subject for debate, "Burial or Cremation."
9. Rumor of game with Penn falls flat. All bets off. Reisner nearly converts the class to a new theory of brain action. Reverend West, of Allentown, speaks in chapel.

Clarks Of The 48th Class

10. Werner discovers the "Twelve Commandments." Dr. Wackernagle presented with a copy of Corregio's "Holy Night" by the Class of 1915. Fresh-Soph Banner rush. The honor of 1917 is valiantly upheld by three men.
11. Muhlenberg team sees the Lehigh-F. and M. game. (?) Management of the A. A. loses several dollars. Assistant Coach Nenow learns some valuable pointers from the practice of the Lehigh team.
12. Nenow and Day join the Chivalrous Order of Lolligoggers for the Entertainment of Errant Females.
13. Soul stirring speech in chapel. Beware of Sunday visitors who come in sheep's clothing, but are airy fairies within. The lure of the feminine is diagnosed. 1915 Pedagogy holds a violent discussion of Allentown's sewerage system.
14. Librarian Freed is seen in the library today. Great mystery as to what he would want there. Upon inquiry it was discovered that he was merely looking for some psychology drawings to trace.
15. "Coke" Loch actually combs his hair. Band master holds tryout and practice. Student Council meets to discuss the crime of Nenow and Day. Punishment is meted out. Full details expurgated by the censor.
16. Prof. S. M. Balliet, Ph.D., of New York University, lectures on "Play, Work, and Drudgery in Education and Life." Some good dope, showing that all curriculum and no "strenuous Swedish gymnastics" makes Elmer a poor boob.
17. Prof. William H. Reese passes another mile stone. "Rob Roy" comes to town; report spreads that the students entertained some of the company.
18. Muhlenberg 20—Gettysburg 6. O be joyful! Fellows report a tough game and 'most everybody comes back with a bunch of bumps. Tension is great at the Dorms while waiting for the score.
19. Another Sunday. We should bibble, but instead we read some chapters in James, which explains very unintelligibly about our smellers. Sunday newspaper dealers make extra large sales.
20. The Senior canes arrive. Most are carried as if made of dynamite. Rube Miller exercises his motorcycle. Motocycling is merely an avocation with Rube. He has never taken it seriously and has never run anyone down. We are looking for progress.

Muhlenberg + College

21. Reisner discovers a new "mouth to mouth" existence in Economics. These osculatory remarks must cease, Jew. Commons cook gives his opinion that eggs are luxuries for President Wilson himself (as well as Chas. Copley).
22. Student Body meets the usual speeches. Hallowe'en parade is discussed. Short cheer practice for Lehigh game. Fry draws a chart showing us just where to sit when we arrive at Taylor Field. Interesting and instructive.
23. Prof. A. H. Quinn, Ph.D., of the University of Pennsylvania, lectures on "The American Novel—Past and Present." Although he failed to mention Harold Bell Wright and Ralph Connor, it was unanimously voted the best lecture this year.
24. Big smoker for the Lehigh game. Band "listens" well. Ethel Barrymore shows us the evil of being a very intelligent woman, in "Aunty." A good moral play displaying an intelligent and beautiful woman in all her horrible reality. A. C. W., take notice!
25. Lehigh beats Muhlenberg, 7-0, in a messy mass of mud and mire. Tom, the gardener, sits on his hat to keep dry during the game. Some really truly Muhlenberg girls come through the rain in order to root for our team.
26. Everybody's got a little cold. Papers do not give us justice. Much speculation as to what the score would have been if it hadn't rained. Lehigh considered lucky.
27. Quiz for Juniors. (Magic Word.) Chapel singers' quartette blossoms forth in all its glory. Qualifications: Inability to keep a tune or sing with a vestige of harmony.
28. 'Nother Quiz for Juniors. (Short but sweet.) Jim Delling very kindly removes the cuffs from his trousers at the importunate requests of Messrs. Skean, Huer, Copley, Moehling, Afflerbach, Berry, and Brubaker. James promises to be a good boy hereafter.
29. More Quizzes for Juniors. (Joy to the world.) After a speech by "Pop" Reese the Student Body decides to enter the Hallowe'en parade with a pajama and a "nightie" squadron. Denouncements by Nenow of those whose dignity forbids them to appear in angelic costumes.
30. Last Quiz for Juniors. (Oh, what a beautiful day.) Rehrig accidentally attends three Hallowe'en parties and absorbs eats at each place and finally nearly gets arrested. We hear Prof. Ephraim Emerton, Ph.D., who writes our textbook in history, lecture on "Luther."
31. Great Hallowe'en Parade. Muhlenberg ghosts headed by our crack band makes a great hit. Yengst scores a great success disguised as an Allentown police sergeant.

Carla Of The 48th Class

NOVEMBER

1. All grinds are stiff and sore after the parade. We beat Lebanon Valley 30-0. Scrubs play in the second half. Lebanon Valley puts up a plucky fight towards the end and Wheelock plays a great game.
2. F. and M. week begins. Energetic cheer leaders placard the buildings with the programs for the week, and many startling and inspiring messages appear in unexpected places. Even the sanctity of the Greek Room is rudely disturbed by modern "pep."
3. Cheer practice after chapel. Obstreperous Freshman rides down Hamilton Street on a wheelbarrow, accompanied by a few other nightgowned Fresh. "North American" reporter and cartoonist visit the football field to lamp and mug the players for a Sunday edition. Fry, in an earnest endeavor to get his moustache caricatured in the paper leads three successive cheers for the cartoonist and one for the reporter.
4. F. and M. spirit well under way. Usual dope after chapel. Sort of rested today to get a good start for the rest of the week.
5. We practice the Marching "M" on the football field to the music of the band. This practice is supervised by Fry, Brown, Bossard, Reese, and Fasig. Paul Stephen Royer leaves college for a few days to act as best man at a wedding. According to the usual custom no Literary Societies meet at usual Wednesday morning session.
6. "Muhlenberg Night" at the Lyceum. The only great opportunity for our greasy grinds to find out what a vaudeville show is like. The hit of the evening is "Pop," the violinist. T. K. Finek, of Virginia, suh, shows possibilities of a great future as a pianist in a vaudeville theater. In a thrilling contest Snyder is elected Euterpea's representative to the Oratorical Union.
7. Everybody full of spirit. Some act as if full of spirits. Speeches in chapel by the faculty and "Bill" Katz, '13. The Freshmen and the band break up classes. Fresh are squelched by being told that another outbreak will cause all athletics at Muhlenberg to be abolished. Freshmen take it seriously. Big smoker! (See picture umpty-leven). Speeches by most everybody. Bauman, Jr., tells of a heart-breaking visions he had. "Butch" Cressman tells us of the Muhlenberg spirit and the gridiron heroes of previous years.
8. Muhlenberg presents Dr. Ettinger on this, his fifty-third birthday, with the F. and M. game, 25-0. F. and M.'s entire student body comes with a band to see the slaughter. Finek, drunk with joy and excitement, squanders 25 cents for a hair cut. Frank Potts, C. J. M. Baker, Bill Scott, Ellis Biery, Christy Quinn, and other prominent alumni come back to see the game and to march down town singing, "Palms of Victory."

Muhlenberg + College

9. Mount Airy "studes" who came up for the game stick around, supposedly to greet their old Sunday-school classes, but in reality to look up their fair friends in Allentown. The earnest endeavor of Fry to be caricatured in the North American failed, and his moustache did not decorate today's paper.
10. Big bonfire built and burned! Mr. Moehling "kindly consented to lend his services to the student body for the day." Mr. Moehling easily dominated the scene throughout the day, and much of the success of the bonfire was due to its artistic construction. This skillful young man will be with us for the next two years and so Allentown is sure of still more treats in store for them. Mr. Moehling's work was a labor of love and he refused to accept any remuneration whatever.
11. Dr. Wackernagle is convinced that several of his scholars expect to go missionarying to the Telagoos. Freed sleeps in English class. Unangst is tired and stiff from overwork.
12. Junior Hop is born. "Pop" Reese forgets to come out, but no one is worried. Literary societies take first definite steps to disband.
13. Chaminade Octette in the chapel. "The Leaves and the Wind" makes a hit. A slight silver offering is lifted. Rev. Preston A. Laury, S.T.D., '89, and father of Harold speaks in chapel.
14. Reisner discovers the "Book of Sampson" in the Bible. "Mose" Keiter falls in love and borrows "Buck" Skean's coat in his haste see his lady-love. Dubbs delivers a lecture on Minny Singers.
15. Prep beats High School, 10-0. Lot of young chicks out to see the game. Muhlenberg beats Indian Reserves, 48-0. Geiss, Schwenk, Heffley, Hollenbaugh, Whitmer, and other comers get in the massacre.
16. Cook, wife, and the little guy are caught swiping coal from the Commons early this morning by Yiengst. Rottenest meals in our history. Crawly bugs in the shredded wheat. Gus Merkle begins to write up his biology notes for the whole year and works all day.
17. All the Cooks (except Scaldy Bill) decide to shake the dust of Muhlenberg from their feet. Great Rejoicing. "Berney" has his birthday. Mrs. Cook wishes him many happy returns. Gus Merkle still working with time out for meals.
18. Two regular cooks arrive from the White House (Allentown) Big Improvements. Fried Potatoes for breakfast. Minister-Pagan football game proposed. Gov. Tener fails to show up. Merkle on the third lap and still going strong.

Carla Of The 48th Class

19. "Pop" Reese dopes it out by comparative scores that, by beating Bucknell, we become tie with Harvard for the championship of the world. Muhlenberg College students welcome Peter S. Gross at Lindemuth's.
20. The ninety-ninth "best song we ever had" is practiced. The Bucknell Special becomes a reality. Manager Bausch announces that the A. A. has found it impossible to supply the team at Bucknell with that "subtle, elusive, indefinable, sub-conscious feeling of spirit" that the playing of the band would have produced. Merkle at the end of the fifth round was groggy but still full of fight.
21. Faculty, jealous of the interest caused by the Pagan-Minister game, refuse to allow it to be played. Snyder is muchly disgusted. Merkle quits plugging for a while to discuss the Pagan-Minister game.
22. Everybody leaves on the "Bucknell Special." Breakfast at the unheard-of hour of 6:30 a. m. Bucknell wins by the close score of 14-6 after being outplayed throughout the game. Freihofer smokes his first cigarette. Merkle neglects his work to attend the game at Bucknell.
23. The "Muhlenberg" appears today, less than a week late. Its appearance is enchanted by the individual pictures of the entire staff. Everybody sleepy after the trip. Real chicken for dinner. Merkle rests.
24. Main Building is ablaze with light this evening. Freed in the library; band in Sophronia; basketball in the cage; Student Council in the Latin Room; Merkle sprinting on the last lap in the Biology Lab.
25. General Council Board of Education meets here. Five speakers for Chapel. Some session.
26. A bunch of boobs with no college spirit go home to mamma and turkey. The Freshies present Dr. Wackernagle with his usual Thanksgiving Turkey. Speeches in Polish, French, German, Latin, Greek and Pennsylvania Dutch. No literary societies as usual.
27. Between arguments, Muhlenberg defeats Albright, 29-3. "Big Boy" Benfer stars. Turkey dinner at Commons after game. Sophs publish very clever menus. Everybody well-filled and happy.
28. Only a few around the place and everybody gets stuffed to the gills. Skean holds the record with seven helpings in one meal. Nenow runs him a close race for second place.
29. Freihofer still sick from his cigarette at Bucknell. Reisner holds a pink tea in Kauffman's room. Leisy is elected Basketball Captain by mail.

Muhlenberg + College

30. Reisner delivers a thirty minute oration on "The Ingratitude of Man," to a very unappreciative audience. The real students blow into town again. Captain Skean and Hick Stolzenbach go to church for a date.

DECEMBER

1. Basketball practice begins. Grand galaxy of stars out for the team as usual. Fatima, the Original Egyptian Deity, comes to town and contorts at the Orpheum.
2. Juniors bluff through another Economics quiz. First question: "Quick! Weyle Robert T. Ely approached, what was Scott Nearing?" Answer, in unison: "Colonel North's Poll." Prof. John D. M. Brown holds his annual birthday today.
3. Euterpea, contrary to its usual custom, holds a meeting and the program for October 31 is much enjoyed. Keiter cuts Pedagogy to see the Orpheum. Same bill as Monday.
4. The first Junior Religion quiz is announced. Numerous cussing. Flexer, Ziemer, Kistler, Schmoyer, and Laudenschlager hold an animated discussion of the merits of Fatima. "Purity" Schmoyer decries the vulgar views of his opponents.
5. Two hour psychology quiz for the Juniors. Walters gets sick plugging for the blamed thing and has to take a special quiz of his own.
6. Warm enough for tennis, and the courts are filled for the last games of the year. Prof. Bailey and Mader beat Ziemer and Heilman in Consolation Doubles. Hick and Enick are hoodooed by Keiter.
7. Rain. The good go to church, get wet, catch cold, and have pneumonia. The Pagans stay in the Dorms, keep dry, loaf and smoke and study. Some day they will be glad for a little cold water.
8. "Pop" Reese gets "sore to the core" and gives more dope on one A. G. Bell. The Freshmen matriculate and are now regular guys. Everybody gets ready with bills for them.
9. Gadski comes with Damrosch and his orchestra. Mme. Gadski sang in German but her facial expression informed us that it was very sad. "It was noted that Mr. Damrosch was getting gray hair and that he did not use his score much." Musical Criticism in the "Allentown Item."
10. Soph Basketball practice. Interesting debate in Student Body, but none in the Literary Societies, because of the fact that no meetings were held.

Clips of The 48th Class

11. Prof. Bossard decides that being a baby is a dangerous business. Loeker room again stirred by wars and rumors of wars. Waterbags in abundance. Prof. Fasig lectures in Economics on "Reading's Milk, Meat, and Graft." Soph's Calendars appear, the classiest yet.
12. The first Junior Religion Quiz was held today. The new institution meets with much disapproval. In the first basketball game of the season we beat P. C. P., 23-21, in an extra period game.
13. Muhlenberg-University of Pennsylvania is won by Penn, 24-17. Henry J. Fry, erstwhile aluminum agent and dead game sport, patronizes the Orpheum gallery, admission 5¢.
14. Finek takes a shower and says "Hell" again. Laury makes a flying trip to New York to see his lovey dove, and returns all fussed about the place and the girl. And this was Sunday.
15. Annual Football Banquet! Judge Trexler, toastmaster. Major Rhoades, '96, Aide-de-camp and Physician to Pres. Wilson, speaks. Coach Kelley presented with a purse. "Ben" Hubbard elected captain for 1915.
16. Ex-President Taft delivers an address on a number of things before the students of Allentown. He arrived forty-five minutes late and spoke ten minutes, totaling fifty-five minutes in all. While waiting for his arrival the audience sang "America" about a half a dozen times.
17. Ziemer goes home. Big delegation, headed with the Lancaster County Band, meets the "Pride of Adamstown." Prof. Bossard installs an A. C. W. art easel as a bulletin board for his announcements.
18. Detling is again reminded of his trousers, although he has matriculated, and falls for it. Junior class is turned topsy turvy by conflicting theories in Economics.
19. Last day of school. Freshies give all of the Profs. yells with three "Merry Christmas"—es on the end. "Gus" Merkle discovers that Moses made 40 speeches in Exodus. Even the grinds do not study this evening.
20. Everybody's packing and on the jump to get the first train back to home. Orpheum friends see their last show for 1913.
21. Churches and Sunday-schools are deserted because of our vacation. Fewer pennies in the collection plate.

JANUARY

1. Happy New Year.

Muhlenberg + College

5. Although school does not open until noon, "Jimmy" Flexer in his eagerness to resume work, comes out for an 11 o'clock class this morning. Avalanche of suitcases packed with grub. All the students return.
6. Hickey and "Baum" Kauffman return. Ben Hubbard leaves to become physical director at Irving School, New York. Junior Dance Committee begins to think seriously of working several weeks to pay off the probable deficit.
7. Euterpea's last meeting. Much enthusiasm shown for the dear dead society. Freed gets a new room-mate. Finds him in his arm-chair—soused. Giess tries to qualify as a fireman by sliding down a rope.
8. An investigation of the pastime of "lolligogglin" is made. Merkle is the chief offender. "Baum" tries to get drunk on rub-down solution. Moehling plays hymns in chapel and brings all of the grinds in the library to tears of rage by his pathetic rendition.
9. The first Junior Ball! The establishment of a new custom at Muhlenberg. Great success! The classiest dance of the year, brought to success by the class of 1915.
10. The elite of the college sleep off the effects of the dance. Judges Horn, Brown, and Simpson decide upon the winners of the short story contest. The decision is kept secret between Unangst and the Printer.
11. "Bloody Ed" Crouthamel, Henry Bagger, and Mayden Barner are soured(?) today. Great excitement! Dinner for dinner and dinner for supper.
12. Dr. Ettinger fails to appear. Joy among the Juniors. Erikson goes to the Orpheum and draws a coal bucket at the Country Store. After prolonged argument he decides to bring it out to school and to use it as a waste basket.
13. Finek says "Hell" twice in succession today. There is great consternation on the third floor of West Berks as to the reform of this moral leper.
14. Glee Club had their pictures taken. Last call for Drama reports. The course next year will be a wonder, for these reports brought to light an amazing quantity of hitherto unknown material.
15. Psychology quiz. Awful day. Juniors show an intense interest in Wm. James's theory of the third dimension. A powerful, compelling, gripping, fascinating chapter in Judd. We cannot imagine why these works never became best sellers. For ourselves, we have never read anything just like them.

Carla Of The 48th Class

16. First Glee Club Concert. Day has a fine time in Perkasie. Fry exhorts some kale out of the Student Body for missions. Lindenstruth goes to the Pergola and reports very favorably on the performance.
17. Susquehanna beats us in our first home basketball game by the score of 33-21. Ben Hubbard and Bill Ritter are missed in the lineup. Berry, Hayes, and Detling are seen for the first time in a real game here.
18. Someone makes a visit to the commons and scares Reisner into refusing milk for his dessert. Coming exams cause fellows to study till 8:00 p. m. and then rush downtown in time for the benediction and the date. Bill Hollenbaugh is seen in church.
19. Mr. T. Bellas, the man who left Lafayette to fight for Grecian independence during the Balkan War, lectured this evening. Personal reminiscences, subtle humor, and detailed knowledge of modern Greece made it the equal of the other lectures we have heard on this subject.
20. The Board of Trustees meets here today and disturbs our wonted calm. Luncheon was served for them at the Commons. Dr. Haas speaks and the Glee Club sings at the meeting of the Parents'-Teachers' Association of Allentown.
21. Yiengst calls attention to the fact that Werner finally agrees with one of our class actions. (Mentioned by Yiengst's request.) Gee, but it's good not to have any Literary Society! We never did get time enough to read "Puck" and "Judge." Lehigh beats us, 72-21.
22. Heutsch and Ziemer have an argument about poetry. Heutsch defends his model, Byron, whose "affairs de coeur" he is imitating. No decision awarded. As a result of this Ziemer tries to write some poetry and makes life in League Hall miserable.
23. Prof. Fritsch and Prof. Bauman conduct chapel. Big attendance. The newly formed Lafayette five beats us, 44-13, at Easton. "Danny" Blackburn does very good work for Lafayette. The second Junior Religion Quiz takes place.
24. Everybody begins plugging for the exams. Luther Fry, Weida, and Weber hold a most interesting discussion on chemical formulas. Lindenstruth decides not to be bored with exams, and leaves for a week's vacation.
25. Between the exams and lowgrades some of the faithful attend church. The more practical and those of little faith decide to study instead.
26. First exam of the week. Worst is past. With care-free hearts we attend the seminar of the day-students in the locker room where Grammes, Eichner, Kistler, and Davidson discuss the foolish questions that they were asked.

Muhlenberg + College

27. Anniversary of "Dutch's" death was celebrated by many unsympathetic quizzes. Harry Fehl cusses the beauty of the classes. Finck again falls from grace and says "Hell."
28. The studious ones, who are somewhat exempt, begin to leave for home, big eats and recuperation. Fellows begin to long for chapel and the good old days of recitation.
29. Almost everybody finishes exams. Grand rush to the Orpheum for relaxation and to Mealey's for exercise. Kraft, Ramirez, and Dundore dissipate at the Pergola.
30. Exams all past. In honor of the event Mr. Maurice Klick entertained this evening at cards. The room was tastefully decorated with cushions, pictures, and furniture. After a pleasant evening dainty refreshments were served. The guests were: Mr. Levi Yiengst, Mr. H. Everett, and Mr. Jack Leisy. Caterer, Heutsch.
31. Dreadful suspense pervades the ozone, comparable only to the fear of the guillotine in the days of the French Revolution. Some optimistic suckers order books for next term. Unangst hands the care of "The Muhlenberg" to Fetherolf with his blessing.

FEBRUARY

1. A terribly lonesome day. No lessons to prepare; no books to study; no Sunday papers to read. Some fellows seek relief by going to church.
2. The Ground Hog sees his shadow. "Pop" Recse summons us for a confidential chat about Physics. Faculty meeting lasts till 6:00 p. m. Suspense is unbearable. Heavy distribution of CIARLA work.
3. Two big events. Dean Ettinger prominent in both. Posts conditions and flunks. Awful slaughter. Speaks in chapel on "Religion in Education."
4. Senior-Junior Literary Society is organized with 23 members and a flourish. Movement is echoed by the Sophomores and the Freshmen. Fried oysters at the Commons. Fogarty takes hold of the basketball team.
5. Juniors discuss the effects of low wages on morals. Quite exciting. Juniors start Logic. Reisner discusses the whatness of the isness. "Bill" Werner comes back after his customary sickness.
6. Glee Club goes to Asbury Park. Seaton Hall beats us in basketball. Much precipitation from the clouds today. The other part of this calendar, which was lost, is found. Great rejoicing on the part of the staff.

Ciarla Of The 48th Class

7. Lecture by Dr. Gunsalus on "Rembrandt." Allentown's high-brows come out for the lecture and clutter up the campus with autos. Muhlenberg plays Pratt Institute. Fellows practice getting in full-dress suits in preparation for the New York Banquet.
8. Commons deserted. Everybody in New York looking for adventure. Keiter asks a cop for the way to "The Little Cafe" and ends up at the New Amsterdam Theater. Skean, Gebert, Orr, and Stolzenbach return from a trip to State College.
9. Big New York Banquet at the Waldorf-Astoria. Leading lights of New York and Allentown attend. Speeches in several languages. Christopher J. Quinn and other prominent Germans are there. We are all regular guys for once.
10. No classes except Analytics, and we are a bit lazy about that. All the trains running to Allentown do a big business, since we must get back to school.
11. This was a very busy day for everybody. CIARLA staff met to discuss the coming book. The real ideas began to be formulated. Work progressing very nicely. It is rumored, that Finck mutilated his chances for heaven again.
12. "Pop" Reese speaks on Abraham Lincoln in chapel. He repeats his lecture at a meeting in the evening. Glee Club visits Reading and Harry Smeltzer makes a hit. Monolognist Laury gets the hook as do the Low Comedians, Reisner, Blair and Day.
13. Glee Club goes to Lebanon. Willie Rapp, the pride of Albright and owner of the dog that is always hanging around, greets the club and tells of his Don Juan love affairs in the fair village of Myerstown.
14. Glee Club returns, shaking the mud of Lebanon from their feet. Koleser tells of his charming reception by some Lebanon girls. Everybody makes a grab for "The Long Day." Varsity plays Fordham University in basketball.
15. Heap much snow. Roads blocked and no milk for breakfast at the Commons. Awful disappointment, after getting out of a warm bed and fighting your way across the campus in the face of a stinging wind.
16. "Freddy" Hemsath explains very thoroughly to the Music Class the superiority of Bethlehem over Allentown as a music center. Snow keeps Barner from marking chapel attendance.

Muhlenberg + College

17. Glee Club visits College for a day before leaving again. Sings in Bethlehem, and the natives show their appreciation of good music by applauding vigorously. All of the Profs tell of their struggles to get out to meet their classes. Their valiant fight in the cause of duty is not appreciated.
18. New Literary Societies meet. Great success. All the knockers are locked out. George Legg, after disporting himself at the Lyric, is offered a job as assistant instructor of dancing by Prof. Ferry.
19. The monthly rumor that Yiengst is married breaks out again. Yiengst grins, brushes back his locks, and takes out his gold watch to find the time. Prof. Horn speaks on "Personal Honor." Glee Club sings at Columbia.
20. Glee Club goes to Lancaster under the auspices of the Reisner Bros. Hem-sath tries to make the Junior religion class a pig-sty. Monday's vacation is announced.
21. Glee Club at Melrose Park—wherever that is. Biggest basketball game of the season. Muhlenberg beats Lafayette 26-20. The good results of Fogarty's coaching are manifest.
22. Patriotic sermons in all the churches. Story of the cherry tree is recapitulated. Finck tells his cherry story to Brennan and others. Intense interest due to his masterly rendition of this old tale.
23. Everybody's washday. Vacation for the students and the cleaning committee. No vacation for the CIARLA staff. We are a busy bunch right now. Freihofer runs his Philadelphia concert and hauls in the dough. Some business manager. Dr. Haas receives his LL.D.
24. Back to school movement begins. February issue of "The Muhlenberg" appears. It contains a long letter from a wandering Pharasaical Son to his dear Alma Mater.
25. Comparatively tame meeting of the Student Body. Student Council is attacked and defended. The greatest excitement is the argument as to whether we shall ask Poet Heutsch to write local dope or poetry "of a more serious kind by which he can someday probably achieve fame."
26. Prof. Bailey speaks on "Parasites." Muhlenberg beats Lebanon Valley by a good looking score. The "Poet Huetsch Debate" keeps up. Finally settled when someone makes the suggestion that he write neither but just keep on scribbling in his present style.
27. Finck does acrobatic stunts on his back in Logic class. Logic is getting worse all of the time but we think that when it knocks a man out of his seat there should be some provision made for our protection.

Carla Of The 48th Class

28. Mayden Barner gets his annual spring catalogue of women's styles. Glee Club men plug up Logic. The "Labor Herald" becomes popular reading. Both Muhlenberg and the Sophs lose their games by very close scores. The Freshmen and the Y. M. C. A. rejoice.

MARCH

1. Snow and wind in oodles. Drifts to your ears. The ground hog has only two weeks more. Awful noise is heard coming from the third floor of West Berks. Its investigation shows that it is merely Bagger practicing his Subway-American Literature Oration.
2. Allentown Prep publishes a long article on modern poetry and Muhlenberg. We quote this gem of thought; "We have heard of Matthew Arnold, but who is Heutsch?" For the benefit of the Prep school, we reply that he is the person who wrote a poem called "Idle Josh" or something like that.
3. Ministers hold serious conference about their prospective basketball team. Homer Parker, Homer Weaver, and Homer Everett conspire with Prof. Horn to resuscitate the lately defunct Classical Club.
4. One year of Wilson, one mouth of Logic, and may the saints preserve us till St. Patrick's day. The Seniors hog a Socialism debate in society.
5. Werner, selling tickets for the lecture, is referred to as "the young boy at the door." His feelings are ruffled. The Student Body is severely censored for its profanity and decides to brace up.
6. Logic quiz for the Juniors. Ye Gods! Horrible! Everybody gets a different set of questions. Keiter gets the only A. Prof. Fritsch speaks in chapel. The Pagans win the basketball game 20-13. Student Council has a lengthy and stormy session.
7. Muhlenberg overwhelms P. C. P. in the last home game of the season. Copley and his opponent bump each other. Freihofer reduces Crouthamel and takes him to the Orpheum. And this is Lent. Horrible.
8. Rain, hail, snow, and all that is bad in the weather line. Reisner wades through the snow to keep a date but his friend fails to show up. Mission congregation is prevented from hearing Fry by the inclement weather.
9. Doctor Wackernagle comes out on the car. Looks at the drifts, and takes the same car back. Dubbs, stuck at Emaus, spends his spare time on his oration.

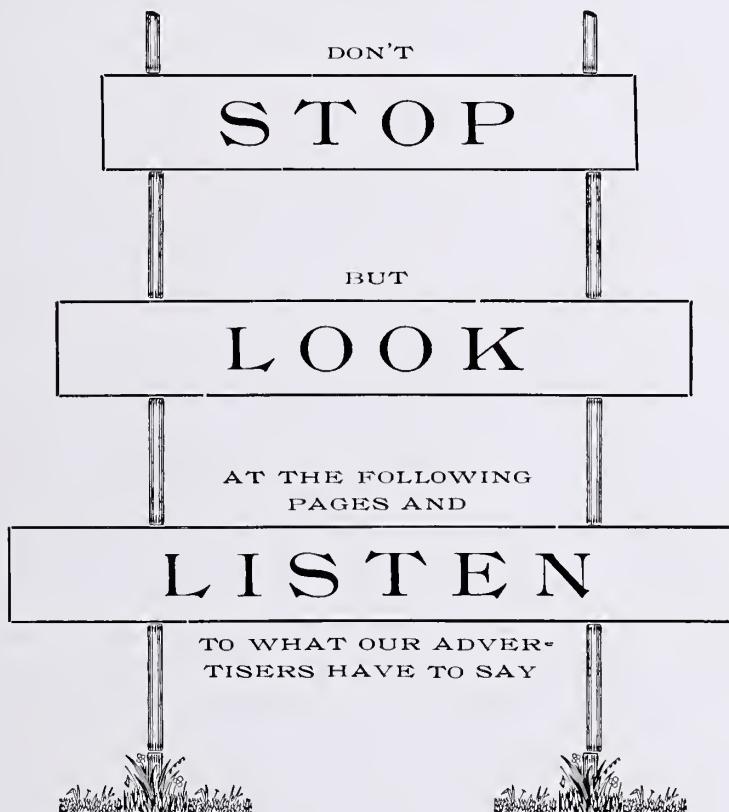

Muhlenberg + College

10. Some misereant vandals (those were not the words used to deseribe them, but this book is censored) turns out the lights in League Hall, and when the engineer eomes over to fix them, turn out the lights in the whole Dorms. All opinions on the matter were expressed in well-ehosen words and with great elearness.
11. Preliminary Oratorieal Contest brings out good oratorieal talent. H. Fry, first; H. Bagger, second. Ziemer makes a terrible threat whieh we quote. "The stairs are long and steep and it is very easy to fall down, your eyes are only made of flesh and it is a long drop from the window to the ground.
12. Grammes and Finck get together and diseover that two judges of the eon-test were ministers, interested in foreign missions, and the third judge was teaeher of English interested in Ameriean Literature.
13. Friday the Thirteenth. Prof. Simpson speaks in ehapel and quotes Wm. James. Dr. Haas gives the best ehapel talk in the history of Muhlenberg. Stolzenbach takes a trip to York to impress people with his great knowledge of baking.
14. Basketball team plays the last game of the season. Allentown's fair rooters attend the Prep-High School game. Muhlenberg's dramatic erities see "Busy Izzy."
15. Harry Smeltzer is seen in Sunday-school. Luther Sehmehl, another Reading light (this is not a pun) joins a choir. Harry Fehl goes home a day late for his weekly trip. Usual light meal at the Commons.
16. Hepner's eake, sent by one of his numerous lady friends, fails to appear after a month's wait. In despair he loses all moral stamina and goes back to selling aluminum on the streets of Allentown.
17. Fresh basketball praetice. The Sophomore team takes a great deal of notiee. Discussion is rampant about the coming game of the series.
18. Sophs beat Fresh in a close basketball game, tying the series at two-two. Everett puts the Sophs ahead by shooting three fouls in the last few minutes. Boyer and Bauseh play the star game for the Fresh.
19. Dr. Cooley lectures on "Rome." The illustrations are furnished by "Doe" Orr and the lantern. Gaily eolored pictures of the old burg. Owing to an indisposition of the Press Club, other students had to prepare the aeeount for the paper.

Ciarla Of The 48th Class

20. Prof. Bossard gives a ripping good speeoh in ehapel on "The Three Views of Life." Howard Kistler takes his girl to see "Quo Vadis" in movies. Edgar Crouthamel does likewise. Finek also attends. A tough Drammer quiz.
21. Fry, Snyder, Bagger, Laury, Grammes, and Reisner go to Franklin and Marshall for the Interelegiate Oratorieal Contest. Hollenbaugh loses a bet to Afflerbach in the Commons. Exeitement rampant.
22. We recopy the ealendar for publication. Werner is asked to teach the Young Ladies' Bible Class in Christ Church in order to swell the attendanee. Bucks is also asked to take the job. Everybody reads Ogg.
23. "Muhlenberg" appears only 11 days late. There is another new poet in our ken who makes his debut in the "Muhlenberg." We are truly blessed, for at last we have one that writes English.
24. Robbery in League Hall. "Indian-giver" Nenow steals his photograph baek from one of the "Den of Angels" so that he can have a cut made of it for the newspaper. Gee Whiz! but we are bothered for our pictures when we are good looking.
25. Mr. Lieper, Secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement of America, speaks in ehapel, holds personal interviews, and addresses the M. C. A. Exeellent foreign mission dope. Too much of this "Here am I, send him" spirit around here. Coach McCaa appears in a baseball suit.
26. No Junior German. Prof. Fritsch sick. Gebert remains in ehapel till the last prayer. Student Body meeting. Stolzenbach makes a motion in Sanskrit.
27. Ausflug. Big Baseball Burlesque. Prof. Simpson umpires the game and escapes murder. General Reisner strikes out four times and gets the booby prize. Custom-made costumes prevail. Idealistic speeches with realistie touches.
28. Nevin Freed goes to Quakertown to see the Sheriff. Weber and Whitmer bring a bale of eash to the bailiff, but are saved from spending it by some of the Juniors who quiet the rumpus. Quakertown quakes.
29. Mission festival in ehapel. Some go to ehureh and some do not. Every body goes out. The editorial staffs of the "Muhlenberg" and the CIARLA write for money. All of the copy is finished.
